

FOR MOTT BEGINS

Friends Ready to Open Headquarters and Work for Popular Mayor

City to Be Divided Into Districts; Political Pot Is Now Boiling

The campaign of Mayor Frank Mott for re-election to the position he now holds in the city government will be formally opened in the early part of next week, probably Tuesday or Wednesday. Preparations are now being made for the event and the conduct of the same with intelligence, vigor and political experience. Senator Edward J. Tyrrell, who has just returned from the late session of the legislature, and who was formerly Mott's private secretary, has been placed in charge of the mayor's headquarters at the northwest corner of Franklin and Thirtieth streets. There open door will be kept for friends of the mayor and good government, as also of several other candidates who are active in the campaign. Senator Tyrrell, who has been connected with several political headquarters in recent campaigns in this city, will have his office as secretary of the same headquarters. There is also on hand a force of clerks who will be kept busy in various ways for the reason that it is the purpose of the mayor and his associates to have the voters of the city both when they are in attendance at the public meetings and at home, because it is known that there are many people who are among the most intelligent of citizens who have no time to attend public meetings at the same time, are disposed to poll their votes for the best candidates on the ticket.

TO DIVIDE CITY.

It is the intention to divide the city into districts by wards and to place a captain with a number of supporters in each precinct for the purpose of increasing the fervor of appreciation with which the announcement of Mott's candidacy for mayor has been received.

All the men who are to be so placed are personal friends and admirers of the mayor, and have volunteered their services, with the pledge that they would remain at the post of duty until the last vote is counted on the night of election. The names of the precincts these volunteers are already at work. They have made a canvass of their several districts and have ascertained who are the supporters of the mayor. Their investigation has been the effect that he is even stronger than ever before by reason of the great amount of improvements of all kinds which have been made during the years he has been in the mayoralty office. The committee in charge of the campaign of the mayor comprises a number of the best known and influential citizens of Oakland. All of these have large followings and the effect their influence and work will have will be to increase the votes for their candidate. The members of this committee are as follows:

Harrison S. Robinson	J. W. Nelson
Dr. H. B. Beckmann	Oliver Ellsworth
Arthur J. Burton	W. H. Garrison
John Mullins	Stewart
M. J. Keefe	Stewart
George Gross	H. H. Pendleton
Francis E. Bilger	H. A. Wilkinson
H. T. Thompson	Frank Murphy
Henry Vogt	John F. Kelly
Dr. B. F. Felt	L. N. Cobbledick
George Hunt	J. C. Spore
W. W. Blair	A. H. Broad
Charles E. Sank	Dr. A. S. Kelly
Dr. H. S. Suter	J. F. Edgart
Dr. S. S. Suter	Charles Howell

PLAN 16 MEETINGS.

It is the intention of this committee to hold sixteen meetings during campaign, before the primaries. These gatherings will be held in various sections of the city at appointed times and in well-lighted halls. There will thus be an opportunity afforded all the residents of the city to hear all the issues discussed and, in a special manner, why an executive who has done so much for the progress of this city should be retained in office for another term under the new organic law. Special attention, in this respect, will be paid to the newly annexed district, where the mayor has a number of friends.

The mayor, at times, will be accompanied by various other candidates who will divide with him the time in the speeches to be delivered. He will also be accompanied by leading speakers and residents of Oakland of all political persuasions, for the reason that the fight is to be made along non-partisan lines. Among the non-candidate speakers will be Senator John Stetson, who made such fine record at the late legislature; William Davis, Charles E. Sank, L. S. Church and a number of others.

ANDERSON AT WORK.

Harry S. Anderson, the well-known young business man of this city, whose home is at 1123 Second avenue, and who is one of the candidates for the position of commissioner No. 1, is making an earnest campaign. His platform of principles appears in another part of this edition of THE TRIBUNE. He has been a resident of the city for more than twenty years and has always been active in Republican ranks. He has, during several campaigns, acted as secretary of the Republican county central committee and has, at others, been a member of the same organization. He has always been willing to bear even more than his share of the work and, at the same time, does that work in a most capable and acceptable manner. It is his intention to conduct his campaign along quiet lines, using his many acquaintances to bring his candidacy to the attention of his friends and then reach the voters through the home. He has made no

Sheriff Declares That He Will Charge Woman With the Murder of Husband.

Dr. Watkins, where I had kept it and burned the policy and some letters with it."

TRACED BY TRUNK.

Mrs. Powell was betrayed to the police by her trunk in spite of the fact she used assumed names. The police first traced it to Belmont's storage warehouse, where it had been stored three months ago by a woman giving the name of Jean Ellis. Then, through A. Conrad, an expressman, who carried her trunk to the ferry depot, it was traced to People's Express company in Oakland.

With this information, Detectives McGowan and McLaughlin went to the home of Dr. James A. Watkins, 3012 Third street, where they found Powell to accompany them to the police station. Instead of taking her to headquarters, the detectives boarded a ferryboat and went with her to the People's Express warehouse in Oakland. There she gave them the key to the trunk.

While she remained in the office of the warehouse the detectives rummaged through the trunk, gathered up every photograph, including several of Dr. Chisholm, letter and postal card that could be found.

STORY OF HER LIFE.

Mrs. Powell was taken to the police station immediately upon her return to this city. She was closeted for several hours with Steve Bunner, assistant captain of detectives. She talked freely. Her story runs: "I came from St. Louis to California from St. Louis I met Dr. Chisholm in Sacramento. That was about three years ago. I came to San Francisco. "One day on a train I met Powell and was married to him. I lived with him about six months. He drank so much and worked so little that I left him."

"While I was living with Powell I frequently met Chisholm. He wrote to me or visited me. He often asked me about my husband, sometimes about his property and at other times about his habits. In fact he already knew a great deal about my husband."

"About six months ago Chisholm and I had a severe fight at San Jose, while I was employed at Sunnyvale. He had so many women friends. He had to spend a great deal of money. He came from St. Paul with her child. We had a fight that resulted in me leaving him for good."

FOND OF "BLANCHES."

"He was also acquainted with another woman whom I called Mrs. Thompson, and several others known as Blanche. He seemed very fond of Blanches."

"Sometimes he posed as my husband and took my husband's name. While we were living at 649A Natoma street last year he called on me several times. As I was known there as Mrs. John D. Powell he called himself John D. Powell."

"The detectives seem to think that my husband had a life insurance policy, but of that I know nothing. As far as I can remember Chisholm never asked me about a life insurance policy."

"My right name is Blanche McCready, but I took the name of my stepfather, Samuels. I was also known as Mrs. Chisholm and Mrs. Ellis."

"I don't know why my husband was murdered, but it begins to look as if Dr. Chisholm is the man who will have to suffer for the crime."

CHISHOLM SILENT.

SANTA ROSA, April 1.—When Dr. L. C. Chisholm, who is in the Sonoma county jail here, was told of the statements made by Mrs. Powell regarding the insurance policy on her husband's life, he refused to make any comment. He said that he was out of touch with his friends and must decline absolutely to say anything.

WORKERS OUSTED FROM THE POLLS

had been cast out of about 5000, which are expected. The total registered vote of Berkeley is 7709. Both sides are claiming good majorities. The Hodghead forces claim that they will win by 500, while Wilson's workers declare their leader will be victor by 1000.

Arthur Ariett, president of the Hodghead Good Government Club, said this afternoon: "We find no material defect in the strictly Hodghead precincts. The central Berkeley vote is not quite so strong as it was two years ago, but we expect the increased vote in West Berkeley plus the normal vote in the hill district to take care of a possible defection in central Berkeley."

Hodghead and Wilson both reside in Precinct 17, in Northeast Berkeley. There was no line as to which candidate led in this district at 1 o'clock. A total of 250 votes had been cast then out of the registration of 522.

In Precinct 1, which is in the Claremont district, and which two years ago gave Hodghead the 4 to 1 majority, today reports a majority equally as large.

SOCIALISTS PROTEST.

The Wilson campaign cohorts today made a strenuous protest against the police regulation which was enforced against the distribution of cards and campaign literature around the polls. A prominent worker said:

"They are enforcing an ordinance which has never been enforced before. The tactics, however, will not hurt Mr. Wilson, although they will tend to confuse a great many as to who the candidates for school director and commissioner are. Another grievance we have is that in combining the precincts in Berkeley, combinations have been formed to service West Berkeley territory which render working men to walk as far, in some cases, as a mile and a half to the polls. This required us to press twenty automobiles into service. We have been especially favored by the substantial citizens of the city who own machines and have placed them at our service."

"Mr. Wilson's workers last night protested against the arrangements at tent booths where it was possible for no more than four voters to cast their ballots at one time. Better accommodations were provided for at our request."

At 2:30 o'clock this afternoon the Wilson forces claimed that they would carry the west end by a 3 to 1 vote, with South Berkeley close up. West of the Santa Fe railroad, it is claimed that the vote will be solely for Wilson and east of the tracks, as far as Shattuck avenue will be in the same direction with a fair margin.

It is claimed that Wilson will break even with Hodghead east of Shattuck avenue. Whoever receives the majority of the vote for mayor today will be elected without regard to the second election April 22.

It is conceded on all sides that Mrs. Ellnor Carlisle will receive the largest number of votes for school director and possibly a majority of all the ballots cast for the other five candidates. In case she does not receive the majority, the three highest candidates will be voted for April 22.

PETERSEN GIVEN 2-YEAR SENTENCE

Prisoner Pleads Guilty and Admits Prior Conviction for Forgery.

Judge Everett J. Brown, sitting in the criminal department of the Superior Court, this forenoon sentenced Henry Petersen to a term of two years in the penitentiary at Folsom, the prisoner having pleaded guilty to the charge of assault with a deadly weapon and a prior conviction of the crime of forgery. He was originally charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder, but the District Attorney's office agreed to modify the information in consideration of a plea of guilty and an admission of the prior crime.

On the afternoon of January 25 of the current year Petersen, who was then employed as gardener by M. J. Layman, became involved in a quarrel with Roy C. Douglas, the latter's chauffeur, at the old Layman residence, 980 Fifth avenue, which was then in the hands of workmen undertaking repairs and alterations. The row started when Douglas accused Petersen of starting a fire in the kitchen that threatened to destroy the property. It ended in the garage by Petersen drawing a revolver and shooting at Douglas as he jumped behind a derrick to save himself. The bullet lodged in Douglas' right wrist.

JUVENILE COURT'S MACHINERY GRINDS

Accused Youths Sent Forth to Tackle the World Anew.

PARENTS OF SMALL GIRL BEGGAR WARNED

Seventeen-Year-Old Youth Promises to Go to Work and School.

For nearly three hours yesterday afternoon the mill of the Juvenile Court under Judge T. W. Harris, ground slowly in an effort to find the wheat among the chaff of the many little boys and girls for whose benefit the court exists, and when it is found to cultivate it and bring forth a crop of useful men and women. A task, surely, to test the wisdom of a Solomon and the heart of a lover of one's kind. Once a week there is the same group of juveniles to deal with and the same problems to solve, and yesterday was like all the other court days of the year.

First there was a little girl of Portuguese parents who live out San Leandro way, a subdued and unassuming woman who was up before the court because she annoyed the people in her neighborhood by begging for money and clothes and who did not go to school. Her parents were of the poorest and spoke no word of English, at least not enough to understand the proceedings of the court and there they all three sat, with eager, uncomprehending eyes, fearful of the power of the law, and waited for the decision of the mighty one who held destiny in his hands. But it was a mighty one, who asked only that the parents promise to forbid the little girl from begging and to send her to school, and when the promise came eagerly, with a voluble stream of vowels and consonants, it was a happy party which fled out of the majestic presence.

EXCEEDED LIMIT.

Next came a nice looking 17-year-old fellow, taken into the toils for driving his automobile at a speed exceeding the limit, although the officers who caused his arrest said he was a driver of consummate skill and was not endangering the life or limb of any one at the time. When this proved to be his first offense, which he admitted, the judge brought a smile to his lips with the announcement of "Discharged, but be more careful next time."

The next case was a case of a boy of the same age who was worried by his father because he did not work and frequented the theaters, coming home at all hours of the night. The boy's mother is in a sanitarium and there are several other children, with the father having his hands full looking after them. But it was not the money the boy could earn which the father wanted; only that he should give up his loitering ways, go to work and save his money. This was what the son promised to do when he was placed in charge of the probation officers, this and to start a savings account with what he earned and to go to night school. No more going to theaters every night, no more loafing around with "the gang," work by day and study by night and the promise of becoming a man worth while.

WAS EASILY LED.

Then the saddest and at the same time most promising case of all, the case of 13-year-old Roy Sparks, who works for a drug store as messenger, but who is easily led away by the influence of other boys, and when an older one some time ago went through the clothes of some of the boys at the Polytechnic high school, it was Roy an example which he emulated the other day when he took more than $5 from some clothes in a dressing room. When questioned he acknowledged his act and buried his face in his hands. But his inherent goodness won the sympathies of those who saw him and when his employer said that he liked the boy's appearance so well that he was willing to take him back to work and when he, at the request of his parents, promised to go to night school, he was put on probation until his majority with the promise that his first hard knock would sober him and strengthen the not over-strong will to the end that it won't be as easy next time to follow the first impulse and lead that comes along.

Several weeks ago Miss Alita Knutsen learned through an acquaintance that a woman who before her marriage bore her name was living in Merced, Cal. Letters were exchanged, identification made positive and the sister in Merced sent for her sister Alita to come immediately and make her home in Merced with her. Miss Knutsen left today.

MAKE LIFE WORTH LIVING Says Elder Cunningham

When pure, healthy blood courses through every vein and artery of the body, the organs are in a healthy condition, and strenuous active life is a pleasure to a man or woman.

But if the blood is impure and sluggish, the appetite poor, digestion weak and vitality not up to the standard, life is a burden; then you need Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, without oil, which evidence as comes from Henry Cunningham, Elder of the Baptist Church, Kingston, N. C., should be convincing. He says: "I was run-down and weak from general debility, and suffered from vertigo. I took Vinol with the most gratifying results. I gained in health and strength and new feel unusually well."

Elder Cunningham's recovery was due to the combined action of the medicinal elements of cod's livers, aided by the blood-making and strengthening properties of tonic iron contained in Vinol. Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you. The Owl Drug Co., Oakland, Cal.

UNION REVIVAL PLANS FINISHED

Pastors in Battle of Diplomacy Win Over Trustees in Richmond.

RICHMOND, April 1.—After a battle of diplomacy and politics the pastors of Richmond have everything in readiness for the big union revival meeting to-morrow evening. A wooden and canvas pavilion that will hold 1200 persons has been erected to accommodate the throngs, but this pavilion plan came near barring the carrying out of the project. The ministers selected a site near Sixth street and Macdonald avenue in the business center of the east side and when they were ready to put up the pavilion found that the site was within the fire limits and that tents and wood were prohibited.

Mayor Willis and the councilmen were finally persuaded that any rodeo of sinners held outside the busiest section would not bring the best result and they granted a temporary permit.

Rev. Charles Calfee, an evangelist, and Mrs. M. Berry Goodwin of Rockhurst, Mill Valley, will be among the speakers. A managing committee of two members from each of the five churches in the campaign is made up as follows: Wesley M. E. L. Dearborn and W. A. Jones; Presbyterian, A. H. Poage and R. A. Slattery; First M. E., Isaac Lees and M. W. Trull; Christian, W. N. Hill and Dr. J. L. Bedwell; Baptist, Henry M. Stearns and J. A. Powell. Members from the San Pablo Baptist and the new Presbyterian church at Stege will also take part.

WEST POINTER HURT IN SWORD CONTEST

NEW YORK, April 1.—There was real sword play in one of the preliminary bouts of the Intercollegiate Fencing Association at the Hotel Astor last night. R. E. Anderson of West Point and J. E. Parker of the University of Pennsylvania had been lunging at each other for about a minute when the latter made a sharp stab at the chest.

West Point threw up his sword arm to parry the lead. The move was a bit late and Parker's foil point hit Anderson hard on the chest. About two inches of foil broke and the part in the head of the Quaker entered the fleshy part of the body under the arm.

After being examined by Drs. Hammond, Gignoux and Echeveria, who were present in the capacity of officials, Anderson was hurried to Roosevelt Hospital. At a late hour it was said that his right lung was perforated.

U. S. ARMY TO GO AFTER LAURELS

Millionaires to Make Sure That Soldiers Are Represented at London.

NEW YORK, April 1.—In order that the United States army may be properly represented in the military and other events at the international horse show in London next June, Judge William A. Moore, Alfred C. Vanderbilt and a dozen other well-known horsemen have formed themselves into a committee and will purchase and present to the United States army the best hunters and jumpers to be found in America, regardless of cost.

Several horses have already been approved by the committee and the following have been purchased: Justine, Duke of Ashleigh, Timberlost, Tampico, Tony Lass, Chiswell, Quandy, Knight of Elway and St. Nicholas II.

All these horses have been winners in the show rings or in the field. The first five were bought in Virginia, the others in New York and vicinity.

Justine, Chiswell and St. Nicholas II will make ideal chargers. Justine, Timberlost, Tony Lass and Tampico are brilliant jumpers. Quandy will be hard to beat in the high-jumping competitions. All these horses are now located at Fort Myer, where they will be schooled over jumps, built and laid out on a course similar to that at Olympia.

SOCIAL SWELLS FUND OF CHURCH

Price of Admission is Fixed at Cost of One Stone Block.

RICHMOND, April 1.—The women of the Wesley M. E. Church gave a successful and novel social last night at A. O. U. W. Hall to help the fund for the new $17,000 church at Ninth street and Nevin avenue, the foundation for which has just been laid. The financial result was all that could be desired.

The women called the affair a "stone-venereering" social because of the fact that the price of admission was fixed at the cost of one block of artificial stone to be used for this purpose or 27 1/2 cents. Of course the change could not be made and the women didn't worry that the visitors had to pay 30 cents.

Mrs. I. L. Kirby was an active leader in the arrangements for the social and Mrs. W. H. Conn and Mrs. H. A. Silver gave active assistance. The Rev. D. W. Calfee is pastor of the church.

Richmond now has twelve churches.

OTTO RINGLING DIES OF HEART DISEASE

NEW YORK, April 1.—Otto Ringling, second of the famous family of brothers who now control the greater part of the circus business of this country, died yesterday after an attack of heart disease.

Ringling was financial manager of Ringling Brothers, and had directed some of the great changes and combinations which have occurred in circus affairs in the last ten years. He lived in apartments at 630 Fifth avenue with the family of his brother John.

The native town of the Ringlings is Baraboo, Wis., where also is the headquarters of their shows. It is likely that the body will be taken there for burial.

Chivers Estimates His Services
Aside From Mayoralty Duty of Incalculable Value.

The confident, non-political, dignified attitude of Herbert C. Chivers in his campaign appeals to many of the clergy. It is seldom that the clergy interest themselves in politics. It is against good policy to do so, yet the loyal, untiring conditions of our new city charter elicits much comment in a quiet way to the mayor's outcome.

One thing is certain, no candidate will be favored who is seeking support on old-line political methods. The new primary law and also the new city charter is framed purposely to bring out new blood in candidates who are running for office. Chivers is quietly but definitely making his own campaign in a quiet, dignified way.

NOT WORRYING AS TO OUTCOME.

It seems to be concerned far less than any of the other candidates as to the outcome of the election, and says that if elected he expects to render the city a service outside of that required by him as mayor that will be worth hundreds of thousands of dollars to the city, namely, the devising of new civic improvements and new charter features to the country at large through his years of close relationship with leading magazines.

Chivers has positively no attraction to no whatever. The sum of $200 per year, which I will get for a full year's work of concentration on the Mayoralty management of Oakland, the devising of new civic improvements and the magazine featuring of Oakland to the world, would not amount to an architect's fee on even one $35,000 building.

TAKES EXCEPTION TO WORD CITY.

"Just at the approach of the World's Fair, when architects' services are greatly in demand, I am offering my services to the city for four years, with the privilege of four more, at $200 per year, and I sincerely want to say, that I will be the best investment the CITY of Oakland ever made. I ask that the word 'city' be capitalized for the reason that in the City of Oakland, San Francisco is ordinarily referred to as 'the city.' Now this villagizing of Oakland by referring to it as a neighboring city must stop, whether I am elected Mayor or not."

"The idea of the inhabitants of a city approaching a quarter of a million of people referring to another neighboring city as 'the city' does not appeal to me at all. I am not a politician. So are we, but we are a separate and very distinct municipality and if elected Mayor, I shall endeavor to eliminate all this referring to our representative neighboring municipality as being altogether 'the city.'"

SEEKS INDIVIDUAL SUPPORT.

"If I enter the office free from the programmed support or special interests I shall produce results. I cannot otherwise."

"I do not ask for the combined support of any interests. I do not want it, or rather, I do not want to be affiliated. If they support me collectively for the reason that they believe me well fitted for the office, it will be very gratefully received, but not solicited. What I prefer, however, is the individual support of the thinking citizen. Let this be a free-thinking campaign. Let every one individually exercise their constitutional rights. Do not go sheep-like to the polls. In accepting combined support, it gives the appearance that it will be a one-sided administration. This I must positively avoid. I cannot afford to take a one-sided position."

"I am for the people and all the people. I want this to be a proper selection of administration, with equity and good judicial treatment to all. If I narrow myself down to too puritanical a policy, I shall not be able to do the city any good. I have all kinds of people to deal with, and I cannot improve unsatisfactory conditions too radically which have become more or less conventional, due to general laxity in the enforcement of the law, nor would it be fair to do so."

A BROAD-GAUGED POLICY.

"Therefore, I say let it be a broad-gauged administration and leave it to me (with, of course, a proper selection of those under me) to secure a general betterment of all proper interests as they exist. I do not believe that any element can say at the end of four years that I have done any one of the slightest injustice nor caused undue hardship. One thing is certain, it will not be a mediocre administration if every citizen does his duty."

Idora Park Opens With Thousands Making Merry

FRED H. WILSON and H. J. ELLIOT on their stilts advertising Idora Park.

With trumpets blaring, flags in multitudinous color flung to the April breeze and the laughing voices of thousands mingling with the whirr of the joy-rides, the merry clatter of scores of fun contrivances and the strident shouts of the spectators, Idora, Oakland's million-dollar amusement park, today opened its season of 1911.

This afternoon a mammoth crowd, growing in volume with the arrival of every train and car, is participating in the festivities. The horde of fun-seekers is made up from every city around the bay, and Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda and San Francisco are turning out their thousands to attend the celebration. Every car of the traction company is crowded to the steps; streams of people are seeking this Mecca of amusement-lovers on foot; autos filled with jolly occupants are turning their noses toward a common goal and the motor key Route trains are bringing crowds of joyful people to the big fun factory.

OPEN UNTIL LATE.

Idora will be open until after midnight. If the exodus of visitors shows no abatement, and there is no evidence that it will be the last ending of the turnstiles will record the largest opening day crowd in the history of the park. In the meantime, the great Philippine band plays on, the Spanish dancers are re-creating an evocation, the jugglers are pressed for encores, the concessions are taxed to the turning away point and the mammoth crowd smiles one big smile of appreciation at the repositioning of Manager B. L. York is being congratulated upon what promises to be the most notable of all Idora seasons.

Tonight, in the light of thousands of var-colored lamps, which will turn the darkness into day, another great throng will smile. There will be another great

CLASS OF 1901
PLAN REUNION

Former University of California Students to Sing the Fame of Class.

Plans have been completed for the reunion of the class of 1901 of the University of California, to be held Saturday night, May 13, in Ebell Club house, Harrison and Fourteenth streets. Before the class disbanded on Commencement Day of 1901, it was agreed that ten years from that date they would hold a reunion. Again, at an informal dinner held by sixty members of the class last May, that intention was confirmed. Officers were then elected and instructed to arrange for the home gathering of the University's first class of the century.

The festivities will commence with a banquet. While the dinner will be more elaborate than last year, it is the intention to have everything contribute to a free and informal affair. After the dinner and following a small amount of necessary business, the class will adjourn to the stage room of the club house for such unique entertainment as talent and ingenuity may provide. There will be no music through out the evening, while dancing will close the program.

"GRADS" WIN FAME.

Owing to the large number of the class of 1901, who have accomplished much in literature and the drama since their college days, the decennial promises to be one of the most successful celebrations ever given by graduates of the University.

Among other features of the program, Miss Eva Powell will render a song composed by Mrs. Wilsie M. Martin, the accompaniment to be played by a blind member of the class, Miss Edna Gelineau, whose studies in music have kept her in Boston for years. Richard Tully, the dramatist, whose first step to prominence was his junior day farce, "James Roberts, Freshman," will also lend to the success of the gathering.

All who were identified with the class of 1901, regardless of degree not held, are included in the invitations being sent out for the reunion. Milton H. Schwartz, president of the class, Ralph T. Fisher, secretary, and a committee consisting of Miss Ruby Morse, Mrs. C. R. Nelson, Miss Elizabeth Arlett, James A. Morgan and Frank L. Mulgrew are making the arrangements.

THUNDER SHAKES VALLEY.

SAN JOSE, April 1.—A thunder and lightning storm, continuing for an hour, traversed the Mount Hamilton range between 2 and 3 o'clock this morning, awakening most of the residents of the valley. Starting in the southeast, it finally culminated with loud detonations and a vivid electric display around the summit of Mount Hamilton.

END ARGUMENT IN COAL LAND TRIAL

Briefs Submitted on Motion to Instruct the Jury to Acquit.

SEATTLE, April 1.—Arguments in the Sir Edward Stracey Alaska coal land cases on the motion to instruct the jury to acquit were concluded today and counsel for both sides submitted briefs to United States District Judge Hanford.

The chief point of issue is the construction of the law of 1904 extending the local land laws to Alaska. The defendants contend that the law of 1904 differs from that of 1873 in that it does not forbid private entries. An adverse ruling by Judge Hanford land office officials say, would not free the defendants, the government being determined to use every resource to punish the frauds.

The Cry of Reaction.

It is entirely unnecessary for Mayor Mott to defend his record in the matter of water front legislation and improvement. What has been done in that regard is so generally approved that it would not be questioned at all but for the fact that a municipal campaign is in progress. Mayor Mott has succeeded in quieting the city's title to the water front and securing peaceable possession, and has also provided for its improvement and utilization. The man who attempts to quarrel with this achievement is attacking the welfare and progressive policy of the city, and will find that he is running counter to public sentiment.

The motive for the attacks on the development of the water front is personal and political. The attacks themselves are puerile and insincere and are not prompted in any degree by a desire to promote the public welfare. Candidates who have nothing better to offer in their own behalf than complaints about the policy which has settled the water front question forever and provided for a comprehensive development of the city's port facilities cannot recommend themselves to the favorable attention of thoughtful and patriotic citizens. As the motive for such complaints is plainly selfish the public will gauge them as unworthy of consideration.

But if the attacks were really sincere they would be expressive of designs at war with the substantial interests of the city. They would forecast a policy of reaction and retrogression that would upset all the plans hitherto made to beautify and adorn the city and develop its commercial facilities. Such a design should be resisted at all hazards regardless of who the opposing candidates may be. The best interests of the city demand that those plans be carried out and not be halted and thrown into confusion. Oakland must go forward and not backward if she would be true to her destiny.

At this particular time there should be a stimulus to progress and not a cessation of activity. The approaching Panama-Pacific Exposition is an incentive to go ahead with the work of development. Our park system should be developed, our wharves and docks constructed, streets paved, etc., and our house generally put in order for the great concourse that is to assemble here in 1915. Oakland must do this for two potent reasons. She must do it to preserve her municipal independence and to get her share of the advantages that will accrue to the whole State from the fair.

Oakland cannot afford to be an example of arrested development when the fair opens. Her opportunity would be lost were the public improvements now in progress permitted to languish. A policy of contention and picayune retrenchment at the expense of public improvement would be bad at any time; it would be disastrous now. This city should be abreast of the times in any event, but the approach of the great fair makes it indispensable now. During the last six years we have been trying to make up for the policy of doing nothing and quarreling which kept the city in a state of suspended animation that prevailed during the previous twenty years. We had no parks, no public improvements, dirty unpaved streets and deficient facilities for fire and police protection; but we had interminable and expensive litigation and a surfeit of rancorous parochial politics.

Shall we return to that condition? Shall the water front settlement be disturbed and the projected dock and wharf improvements be held up and delayed and more lawyers employed to involve the city in costly litigation and its affairs in utter confusion? That seems to be the purpose (if they are sincere) of some of the candidates against Mayor Mott on account of the water front. It would be ruinous to permit such a purpose to be carried out. If there is no intention of carrying it out the men who announce it are unworthy of public confidence. They are raising a false cry and setting up a false pretense in the hope of getting office.

The people of Oakland will make a tremendous mistake if they place the government in the hands of men with no higher motive and no more regard for the public interests than to make a campaign on a bunco issue prosecuted with calumny and misrepresentation.

Miss Annie F. Brown is the only woman candidate for the school board. She ought to be elected because she is exceptionally qualified by education, training and experience, and for the additional reason that there should be at least one woman on the Board of Education. It has become a rule in eastern cities to have women on the school boards. Even in New York City the local boards are generally composed of two women and three men. Under the new charter the school board will be composed of six members. Miss Brown will reduce the feminine representation to the lowest possible point. In our opinion it is fortunate for the interests of the school department that so capable a woman as Miss Brown is a candidate. That she will be elected seems beyond reasonable doubt, which is another cause for congratulation. Nevertheless, every voter should make sure that her name is on his ballot. She is a candidate for Director No. 5. Her only opponent is H. C. Tuck, known as the blind Socialist. Mr. Tuck's candidacy is another argument in favor of Miss Brown.

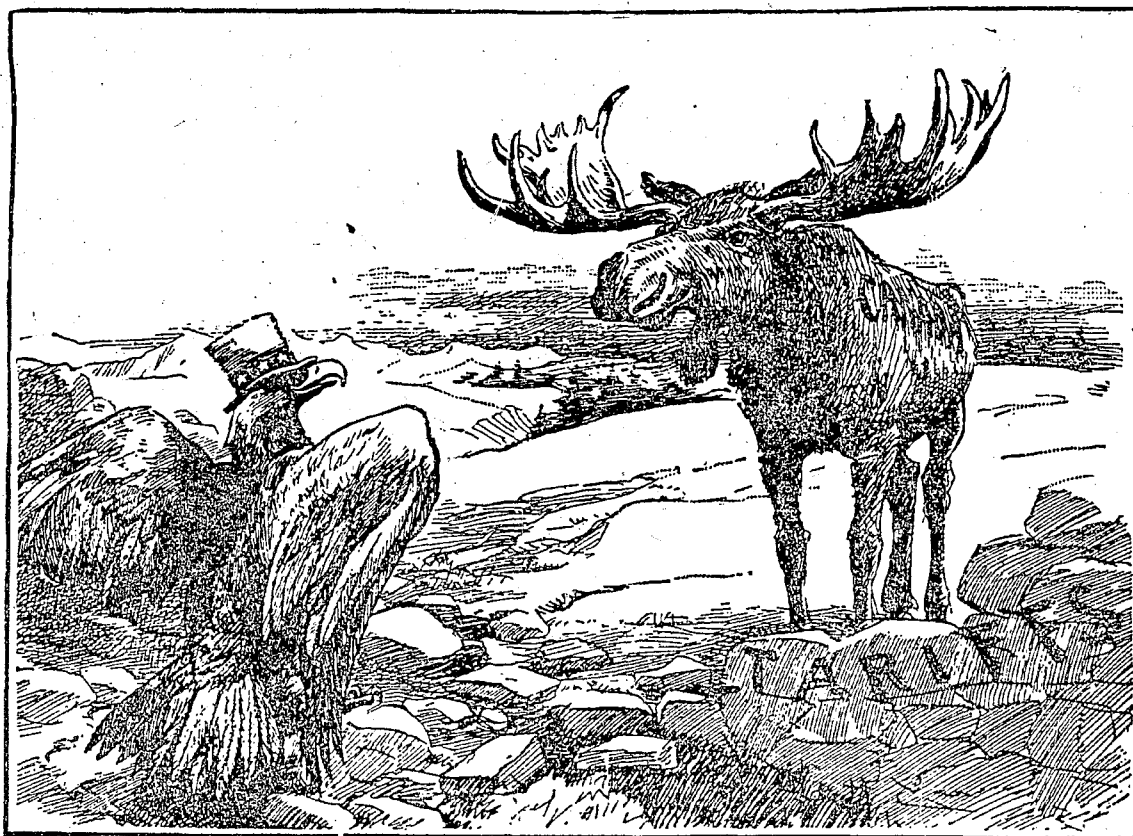

The season for brook beer and trout fishing opened today. The weather is ideal for both.

The deadlock in the New York Legislature has been ended by the election of Justice James O'Gorman to the United States Senate. Tammany has come out victor in the contest. The Democratic insurgents prevented the election of William F. Sheehan, but in the end the boss of Tammany Hall named the Senator. It does not appear that the selection of Justice O'Gorman is a material gain for the cause of anti-bossism. O'Gorman is a man of excellent character and considerable ability, but in these respects he is not superior to Sheehan. He is a thorough Tammany man, and was for a time Grand Sachem of the Tammany wigwag. He owes his place on the Supreme bench to the favor of Tammany and the influence of Charlie Murphy, the Tammany boss, elevated him to the Senate. The insurgents have gained nothing by defeating Sheehan. O'Gorman succeeds Chauncey Depew, who is badly discredited throughout the country. The Republicans gained no glory by the conflict over the Senatorship, for they stuck solidly to Depew. As between O'Gorman and Depew the choice was of the Hobson character. But the Democrats of New York lost a brilliant opportunity when they passed by such men as Shepard and Kernan to elect a sachem of Tammany Hall.

An Event in Texas Journalism.

The Associated Press loses one of its most capable men in Charles S. Deihl, who has resigned to become one of the editors and proprietors of the San Antonio Light. Mr. Deihl has been connected with the Associated Press for a generation and has been Assistant General Manager for the last twenty years. He was for a time manager for the western division, with headquarters at San Francisco. His success in that position was so conspicuous that he was called to Chicago and made assistant to the General Manager.

Harry L. Beach, at present superintendent of the central division of the Associated Press, will be associated with Mr. Deihl in the ownership and management of the San Antonio paper they have jointly purchased. Like Mr. Deihl, Mr. Beach has had a long experience in the newsgathering field and is widely known and popular among newspaper writers and publishers.

Deihl and Beach ought to make a splendid team. Both are veteran newspaper men, and they have a fine field for the exercise of their talents. San Antonio is a thriving, bustling city of a hundred thousand inhabitants, with a vast tributary territory in which it is supreme. In this field the San Antonio papers have no competitors. The Light is an afternoon paper with a well-established business and boundless opportunities. Messrs. Deihl and Beach ought to make it a splendid property.

To the new publishers of the Light THE TRIBUNE extends congratulations and good wishes. We know they will succeed and that San Antonio has made a valuable acquisition to her promotion facilities by the entrance of Messrs. Deihl and Beach into Texas journalism. They will give San Antonio a live, progressive, high grade newspaper of the modern type.

A San Francisco genealogist has discovered that Theodore Roosevelt is a lineal descendant of Robert Bruce, the hero king of Scotland. It ought to be easy enough now to trace his descent back to Caesar and Alexander.

GREAT BRITAIN'S MUSIC

King George has consented to lend to the British Museum the whole of his private musical library, which contains, roughly speaking, about one thousand manuscripts and about three thousand printed books and music. As regards numbers, therefore, it is a comparatively small library, yet in it are to be found not a few priceless treasures, and of these the Handel autographs claim first mention.

They consist of thirty-two volumes of operas, twenty-one of oratorios, seven of odes and serenades, twelve of miscellaneous sacred music and eleven of cantatas and sketches. Handel promised to bequeath all his manuscripts to John Christopher Smith, his faithful amanuensis, but afterward proposed a sum of money in lieu of the autographs.

Smith, however, earnestly begged for the fulfillment of the promise, and Handel kept his word. Had Smith accepted the composer's proposition all the manuscripts at the death of the latter would have gone to the University of Oxford. Smith, who by the way refused an offer of £2000 made by Frederick the Great for them, bequeathed them to George III, to show his gratitude to the king for continuing his pension, which had been granted to him by the Princess Dowager of Wales. These volumes were used by special permission of Queen Victoria by Dr. Chrystander for the critical edition of Handel's works published by the German Handel Society.

There are also two splendid volumes of virginal music which belonged to Benjamin Osgyn and William Forster, both written during the first quarter of the seventeenth century. Then there is a most interesting volume of "Aires and Phantasies" for the organ, composed for Charles I by John Cooper, who, having Italianized his name, was known as Cooperio. He was the master of Henry and William Lawes.—The Queen.

Along the coasts of New England, of the British Isles and of Western Europe seaweeds are used as fertilizers. In some countries they are used for litter and for stuffing mattresses. Japan alone among nations studies the utilization of its seaweed resources.

Experimental planting in a small scale has been undertaken by the Japanese government with encouraging results. The red laver (Porphyra laciniata) is extensively "planted" and manufactured into food products for domestic use. The area of suitable submerged lands is limited and leased out by the local governments. From 2500 to 3000 acres are planted annually, nearly all in Tokyo Bay and near Hiroshima.

The red laver grows abundantly along both coasts of the United States and also in Ireland.

Of still greater importance is the seaweed of the genus Gelidium, used in the

Signs of Spring

No, not the warming sunshin, nor the clearer blue sky, nor the tiny shoots of bright green grass, nor the twittering bluebird—none of these things is the sign positive of spring.

It is a sign more convincing, irrefutable. Turn to the sporting page of the paper and note the certain sign of spring.

"Phillies" go south; Athletics pack their trunks.

Now, of course, there is only one reason for this trip down south. It marks the reopening of the baseball season, and baseball is as positive a spring sign as a twenty-four-inch snowfall is of a blizzard.

With the departure of the two baseball teams for the southland, it is almost safe enough to put the heavy overcoat in camp, to let the furnace fire go to blazes and to oil the lawn mower.

No sooner is the frost out of the ground and the soil restored to fit condition for human feet, than the small boy will dash home from school and promptly betake himself to the nearest lot for a "try-out" with all the other rival twirlers and catchers of the block.

Even before the "Phillies" reach Alabama or the Athletics touch the paths of the Virginia Hot Springs, the youngsters at home will be shouting, "Play ball."

And this means the coming of spring.—Philadelphia Times.

It must have been a spinster who said that some widows wear heavy veils to conceal their joy.—New York Post.

A man who thinks he's smart enough to do somebody else thinks he's smart enough not to be done by anybody else, but he isn't.

Buried hopes need no tombstones. The grass widow is sometimes a daisy. The shortest sermons often have the longest reach.

It is a rather doubtful compliment to tell the mother of a first baby that it is a howling success.—New York Press.

SEALING ITS DOOM

The trouser skirt is doomed. From all quarters come expressions of complete agreement with the views regarding this freak of Parisian dressmakers given in the Express. Whatever may be done by one or two eccentric women, there is no doubt that the attempt to fust the skirt on English women generally has failed ignominiously.

The reason for this abrupt but welcome extinction is not far to seek. The trouser skirt has neither beauty, art or decency to recommend it. By lacking all three of these qualities this hideous innovation has surely compassed its own destruction.

Mme. Paquin (through her London representative): "Mme. Paquin has not made any trouser skirts, and she will not make any. She considers that it is merely a passing whim, and one that may very well be left to the small number of women who seek to make themselves attractive—or rather conspicuous—by the display of ill-considered eccentricity and meretricious invention in their dress."

"Mme. Paquin fears that many who will risk adopting the new fashion will be vastly disappointed by their experience. So far the approaching season she is deliberately turning aside from the trend given by others and has created models which in no way resemble the notorious trouser skirt."

"She is genuinely convinced that trousers for ladies, so far from dominating the season of 1911, will have no influence upon it at all; they will rank merely as an eccentric curiosity."

Lady Duff-Gordon (the founder and head of the House of Lucile, the famous dressmaker in Hanover Square, who has branches in Paris and New York): "It is the most hideous thing that was ever invented. I should no more think of allowing a trouser skirt to be made at Lucile's than I would of wearing one myself. The novelty may possibly be taken up by some second rate houses, but you may be quite sure that none of the first-class dressmakers will have anything to do with it."—London Express.

CLOCK AND THE STORK

The adoption of Greenwich time by France has raised a pretty legal quiz for the French lawyers.

At midnight Friday the clocks were stopped for the space of nine minutes and twenty-one seconds in order to permit Greenwich time to overtake them; railroad trains and everything else in motion, that operates on schedule, being held up correspondingly.

How during this dropping of a stitch in the thread of national life? Are they legally alive? Were they ever born? Unless it be conceded that the stroke of 12 was nine minutes and twenty-one seconds long, there will apparently be no way of determining so nice a question. Only the public clocks were stopped by law. Adjustment of the family timepieces awaited private convenience.

Presumably few of these were stopped; probably none where they were awaiting the stork. Tristram Shandy's mother, at a like juncture, was exceedingly solicitous about the clocks being wound up. Most persons, at so interesting a time, would refuse to halt the pendulum even to please the government.

Confusion quite beyond relief would result when the French courts to take judicial notice that any domestic clock in such circumstances ticked on imperceptibly while official time, to the amount of nine minutes and twenty-one seconds, was being arbitrarily enunciated. The French babies, unquestionably, will be given the benefit of any doubt caused by the temporary entanglement of the stork with the Greenwich meridian.—Providence Journal.

HOW JAPAN FIGHTS FIRE

As a display of low comedy talent, of acrobatic skill and of lung capacity, the review of the Tokio fire brigades at Hibiya Park may have had a certain degree of interest, but as a demonstration of practical efficiency in dealing with the Japanese translator loves to designate "conflagrations" it was unutterably farcical.

Upon witnessing such a lamentable display of ineptitude one could only marvel that the capital has hitherto escaped total destruction or that the ravages to which Osaka was subjected last year were restricted to some twenty thousand houses.

It is true that the metropolitan fire companies represent a great advance upon what they were during pre-Meiji days, when the greatest solicitude of the members of the "fire department" was devoted not to the task of extinguishing the flames but rather to that of preserving from incineration the little effigy of a god or patron saint, which every company unfailingly carried with it on these expeditions for good luck.

Old residents bear witness to the vociferous energy and enthusiasm with which the firemen fulfilled this self-appointed task, while the fire in its turn merrily discharged its mission of gutting everything inflammable within an accessible area. If, however, in the end the firemen escaped in withdrawing with their little wooden god still intact they were immensely pleased with themselves and were satisfied that the society at large could have no ground for demanding anything more than this.

Cool and capable in war, the Japanese, despite centuries of familiarity, appear to lose their heads when fire starts. Confusion reigns supreme. Connected with each fire station are large numbers of what may be termed auxiliaries, who have really nothing to do with the actual task of extinguishing the flames, but whose duties consist in appearing on the scene at the earliest possible moment armed with lanterns and thermostats for the purpose of lighting and chattering from the buildings in the danger line.—New York Herald.

A SUMMER SCHOOL OF ART

The University of Pennsylvania has made a departure in the matter of summer schools, and purposes during the coming season to establish the first of what is described as a system of outposts for university instruction in the history of art in European schools. As a beginning, a course in the history of Venetian art will be given in the city of Venice.

The plan assumes that for the majority of people the Venetian school of painting is the most delightful of the Italian schools. In spite of many serious losses, it is pointed out, most of the works of Italy's great masters are still in Venice, where they are displayed in their original environment. For this reason Venice has been selected as the seat of the first course in summer schools which will be given in all of the great art centers of Europe.

During recent years the great universities and the more important small colleges have devoted much attention to the study of the history of art. In University of Rochester a distinct department has been maintained with Elizabeth H. Denio at its head, with gratifying results. The establishment of summer schools abroad, with opportunity to study the examples of the great masters, is a distinct step in advance which will be appreciated by students of art history who are able to avail themselves of its advantages.—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

Church That Is Nightmare

One of the most extraordinary and fantastic Christian places of worship in the world is the Cathedral of Moscow—strange not only in outline and conception, but even stranger in its history. No one knows the architect's name, but the story goes that the czar ordered his to be put out directly the church was completed, so that he should never be able to surpass his work. The idea of the building was inspired by the wickedest and maddest monarch who ever sat on a throne—Ivan the Terrible, Czar of Muscovy.

The church is known as Basil Blajenni or Blessed Basil, and is named after a half-witted vagrant monk, who for some strange reason was almost the only person in the empire that the czar feared. Although everyone else trembled before Ivan, Basil Blajenni would flout him, call him "Yashka," or "Bad."

Little Ivan, and most daring thing of all, would try to protect the victims of the czar's fury. He and another friend of the same caliber, named Ivan the Idiot, are buried in two memorial chapels beneath the cathedral.

Judge Ellsworth has been luridly described by a well known writer.

"It is a striking memorial of a fearful era. Standing in the shadow of the Kremlin wall, on soil saturated with the blood of innocent martyrs, examine the building closely and call to memory the people by whom and for whom it was produced. Then, and then only, may the conception of this fungus-like excrescence seem possible and Basil Blajenni stand revealed as an expression of inordinate vanity, uncontrolled passion, and insatiable lust. Like attributes without a soul—wild, monstrous, horrible."—Strand.

20 YEARS AGO IN OAKLAND

Mrs. Minerva J. Sweeney, wife of Rev. George W. Sweeney, has bought the business property on the northeast corner of Tenth and Franklin streets from the Live Oak lodge of Masons and it is her intention to erect thereon a brick business block.

Frank B. Thompson and John E. Thompson, both residents of Berkeley, have filed papers of partnership with the County Clerk.

Chairman J. W. Nelson of the new city council appointed at last night's meeting the various committees who will serve on that body during the coming term.

Three young women took the vows of the white veil in the chapel of the Sacred Heart convent yesterday morning. They were Miss McCoy, who will hereafter be known as Sister Emerita; Miss Mulvey, whose title will be Sister Herbert, and Miss Jensen, who takes the name of Sister Vibiana. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. Father Michael King of St. Mary's parish, assisted by Father McSweeney, Father Lally, Father Newell of the Dominican Order, Father Quinn and Father Doran.

It is announced that the big bath house being erected on Twenty-fourth street by the Piedmont Consolidated cable railroad will be ready for occupancy within a few days.

Judge Ellsworth has ordered a distribution of the estate of William Lockerman, deceased. Lockerman was worth about $20,000. When he died, his sister Mary Jane Roberts, a resident of Keyport, N. J., was almost starving. As she is the only heir, the court ordered that the entire estate be distributed to her.

The following took part in an Easter concert given in the Presbyterian Sunday school in San Leandro: Barbara Driver, Winnie Eber, Lizzie Stahl, Carl Jacobson, Louis Waite, Ida Belle Bessie Palm, Lottie East, Carrie DeMont, Edwin Baumbacher, Maur Woodmont, Luella Elger and Rev. F. W. Lynch.

F. K. Shattuck will build at his home place on Shattuck avenue a handsome residence to cost $10,000. W. H. Weir is preparing the plans.

Mrs. M. Hirschberg, her son, Alexander and her daughter, Mrs. D. Hirschberg, returned yesterday from the Hawaiian Islands.

The following were elected as vestryment at the meeting held in St. Paul's Church last evening: D. H. Ward, H. Soule, John Crellin, A. H. Fennoy, G. LeConte, A. W. Bishop, H. C. J. C. Norris and D. M. Kent.

GOSSIP FROM SAN FRANCISCO WEEK ENDS

English Women As Boxers

One never knows how far a fad may travel. One is never sure of the ultimate consequences of one's unconsidered actions. Did Tommy Sears dream, for instance, when she put on a pair of boxing gloves at Burlingame and sparred for a couple of rounds with Walter H. Hart, that the news of her exploit would cross a continent and an ocean and start a boxing fad among English women? I think it is safe to say that Eleanor, not being a girl of deep reflective character, never gave the matter a thought. But just the same English women have taken up boxing and if they did not get the idea from "Tommy," whence in the name of British imitativity, did they derive it? British boxing instructors give lessons to many of the athletic maids in London society, which is not entirely surprising, for society maids must rout out at all costs. They also give lessons to British matrons, which must be at least a trifle disconcerting to the husbands who, naturally, cannot all be as handy in the Queensbury science as "Bobby" Beresford. One of the instructors deigned to talk on the subject recently. "The reckless way," he said, "in which some of my pupils risk black eyes and cut lips is astonishing. The married ladies are very apt. Nothing seems to please them more than a short bout with their husbands, and as most of them seem to have an innate idea that offense is the best defense the husbands usually have to be fully on their guard. In the matter of hitting straight from the shoulder I do not find women very apt pupils. When a woman has a man opposed to her she is inclined to give downward hammer blows precedence over all else." All this is calculated to produce an uncomfortable feeling among mere men. A wife with an "innate idea" about "hammer blows" does not inspire perfect confidence. One hopes the fashion will not take too strong a hold. But for the benefit of possible neophytes it may be explained that the proper costume consists of "five ounce gloves, blue serge shorts and longish loose coats."—Town Talk.

The Science of Kissing

Kissing has passed from a mere meeting of the lips as exemplified by the average man and woman to an art, a science, a profession which has its devotees and its shining lights, just as other professions have. The kiss is classified, and each occasion is tabulated and labeled by the expert. The majority of Kissing Experts are to be found on the stage, but San Francisco boasts a well-known clubman who has given the subject much thought, and after many years of experience has become an expert, a savant, in the Kissing Profession. For personal reasons he prefers to remain unknown, but is willing to furnish all information on the subject that could be desired. For instance, he classifies every kiss, from the Sensational Kiss of Passion to the mere touching of the lips to the hand. In his opinion the "Kiss of Passion" is exemplified by Miss Hazel Dawn and Frank Taylor, now appearing back East in "The Pink Lady." This kiss continues fully three minutes. He says, however, that it has a close rival in Mary Garden's "Kiss Aggressive," which she administers to John McCormack in the new opera of "Natoma." He declares that while the kiss does not last three or five minutes required for the "Kiss Aggressive," it is quite as fervid and fully as effective.

There are too many kisses to describe in detail, but a few are known as follows:

- "The Overnight Kiss."
- "The Kiss Domestic."
- "The Kiss Friendly."
- "The Return Kiss."
- "The Kiss Seductive."
- "The Kiss de Luxe."
- "The Kiss Royal."
- "The Kiss Quick."
- "The Kiss-Angel Kiss."
- "The Good Night Kiss."
- "The Soul Kiss."
- "The Wifely Kiss."
- "The Affinity Kiss."

A Tom Williams Story

There is a great deal of sorrow around town over the death of this lovable journalist. He had many friends here, most of whom looked forward eagerly to the day when he would return to The Examiner, the paper of his first love. A lot of anecdotes are being narrated of him. One of them has to do with those early days in his San Francisco career when he drove a Fourth street horse car. Williams was tooling his two horses over the bobbles one drowsy afternoon when a butcher's wagon got on the track. "Get that old cow of yours off the track or I'll run over you," cried Williams to the driver. The driver answered with a similar taunt, one word led to another and finally a race was decided on. Williams wrapped the reins around the handle of the brake, jumped off the platform and began pelting his two animals with rocks to make them travel. He won the race, but when the horses came to a curve they swerved so suddenly that the traces broke and the car hurtled on in a straight line, coming to a stop in the show window of a second-hand clothes dealer. Whereupon Williams handed his resignation to the conductor of the car and quit the street railway business.—Town Talk.

A Variation On an Old Tune

Frankness is usually admirable, though sometimes embarrassing. When a frank statement of truth replaces one of those little lies sanctioned by usage endorsement for somebody to endeavor to end. And yet there may be palliating circumstances. For instance: Just before Miss Marian Newhall left for her tour abroad a prominent young bachelor who had for a long time been an ardent admirer of the charming girl, called to see her. It happens that his attentions have never been appreciated either by Mrs. Newhall or her daughter. On this occasion the maid bore to the expectant caller this message from Miss Newhall: "I am at home but do not care to see him."—Town Talk.

Prank of Merry Wags

The divorce suit which cartoonist Homer Davenport filed against his wife this week in Salem, Oregon, was certainly never foreshadowed in the comic story the merry wags and light-hearted insouciance of grief used to tell of Homer's original courtship in the days when they were all irresponsible cubs together on the Examiner. They were an unaccountable lot and never ceased to trust Providence as long as the French restaurant-keepers trusted them. One warm afternoon in springtime, while the art room was gaping and pencils were moving languidly, Davenport glanced lazily at the lazy-moving clock, stretched himself carelessly, and with nothing better in mind to deliver, he suddenly hazarded, "I guess I'll get married." Down rattled boards and pencils. "Great!" "Good idea!" "Only original one you ever had!" "Nail it to the wall!" "Let me make the first sketch of it." For ten minutes the madcap staff badgered the unfortunate Davenport. He offered to resign the idea and turn it over to one of the other artists for immediate use, but they refused to be so generous as to take from him the only bright idea he had coined. They demanded to know how he was going about the business. He said he did not know. Forthwith a steering committee was appointed to take the candidate in charge and groom him for the venture. It was unanimously decided that, as advertising brings the quickest results—and results are what we are after—a bride should be advertised for. Davenport protested, but gave in when it was pointed out to him that by placing the ad. in the Examiner the woman would come back to him in the shape of his salary and that if he advertised enough he would soon have enough money to pay for his honeymoon and furnish his future home.

The advertising scheme materialized—those mad jesters could have made any lark go through—and in due time Davenport was calling regularly on the prospective bride. One evening, however, there happened to be a particularly attractive young lady calling on his fiancé, and after the gathering was over it fell to the cartoonist's lot to escort her home. Cupid ambushed the couple on that seven-block walk and robbed the dazed artist of every inclination he had to marry the other girl. The steering committee was nearly wrecked in straightening out the complication, but as the slogan was "Homer Married and in His Own Home, a Foundling Asylum for Artists," they had no inclinations to discontinue over the name of the bride. It was adopted viva voce that all they wanted was a bride, a home, a country and a life. And so Davenport was duly married to the second lady at least, I was always assured by the steering committee that he was. But, as I stated before, the steering committee were indifferent about the name or identity of the bride. Its only excuse for existence was to steer Davenport into matrimony, and they always claimed that they had succeeded. Anyhow, they celebrated the event nightly for a long time thereafter at a popular bohemian resort on Bush street, which is another bit of evidence that they really believed they were responsible for his marriage.—The Wasp.

Knocked the Rocking-Horse Riders

Lord and Lady Tweedmouth and Lord and Lady Innes-Kerr passed through the city so quietly last week that local society and the smart set bawled were not awakened. Richard Tobin saw them off and as host during most of the time they were in the State. The men came over for the recent polo tournament at Coronado, and Dick Tobin, always eager to cultivate, encourage and reward sportsmanship in that line, exerted himself to make their visit a happy memory. At the close of the tournament the Englishmen and their wives planned a horseback ride through the wooded roads of the Santa Cruz mountains in this direction. The riders cut out a heart-breaking pace from the start, and the unseasoned park caballeros who joined them for a lark soon succumbed and dropped off at the warm baths and liniment tanks at Santa Robles to ease their well-worn nerves, and while the four Englishbreds, ardent devotees of simultaneous outdoor life, maintained the killing pace to the end, and at the finish declared the trip to be one of the most interesting and invigorating they had ever undertaken. They plan to return on a visit at the next Coronado meet. The party is now on the way to the Orient.—The Wasp.

Carried Joke a Bit Too Far

Mrs. F. G. Clemens and her daughters, Miss W. R. Clemens and Miss H. R. Clemens of Pottsville, Penn., thought it a fine joke to impersonate Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Miss Ethel Roosevelt and her friend on their way from Los Angeles to Santa Barbara, while an attentive Potter Hotel clerk danced about, drawing alike upon his knowledge and his imagination to explain the various interesting landmarks between the two places. It was also pure fun when this clerk pointed the ladies out to the driver sent to the depot with a handsome private carriage to escort the distinguished visitors to the big hotel near the ocean. Mrs. Roosevelt, her daughter and her daughter's friend had their fun out of the incident, thoroughly enjoying the lark of carrying their own hand luggage to the Potter bus and going with the crowd to the hotel. When it was explained the Washington ladies still made merry over the contretemps, but the Pennsylvanians were given to understand that they had gone a bit too far when they accepted the use of the handsome equipage designed for the Roosevelts, and while they are persons not grudging at the hospitality, there is a high moral question pending—"Ought they not to pay the customary price for the carriage?" The Clemens have said nothing at all, and really saying nothing is the art of the sage of all ages, is it not?

Mr. and Mrs. Francis T. Underhill called for the Roosevelts and drove them about Santa Barbara and through Montecito valley, after which they took them to the home of Admiral and Mrs. W. A. Bacon, at Garden and Mission streets, where they met a few of Mrs. Bacon's intimate friends at tea. They left on the Lark that same night—Wednesday, March 22—but they did not ride to the depot in the bus.—The Wasp.

Women and Money They Spend

Mrs. Gertrude Atherton has broken out in another interview—this time the lady has been telling London a few interesting things about us. "I have never known such extravagance as there is in America today," she remarked, "and yet I have heard nothing but talk of hard times in the last few years. The women have the money and spend it. Perhaps they have a feeling at the back of their minds that some day they won't have it." I don't know that Mrs. Atherton has hit the reason on the head, but she is quite right that women talk hard times just as much as men, if not more, and usually spend more money. But in most cases that I know of the women who talk, talk, talk hard times are those who hug the excuse when they want to indulge in some small, mean economy. There are a few women who only spend money for personal glorification. They entertain not to give their friends a good time, but to become known as fashionable hostesses, and they invite the people whose names will look best in print. Such a hostess gave a bridge party the other day, and the lucky guests carried off exquisite prizes that were costly enough to arouse the avaricious spirit if it was present. But an extra maid who was called on for service was charged to spill a few scalding drops on a rug. Now, we who do not pose as rug experts know that a whole tea bath could never hurt a good rug. But the hostess kept out one dollar of the girl's pay for the imaginary damage, and needless to say the maid has told the tale wherever she goes.—News Letter.

Interesting to Many Oaklanders

Marion Smith Oliver, foster daughter of F. M. Smith, "Borax King" and multimillionaire, is going on the stage in France, according to reports from her intimate friends who have received letters from the California society woman who is now in Europe, where she has been since leaving here one year ago. The report that Mrs. Oliver contemplates going on the stage follows closely upon a rumor to the effect that she was contemplating suing for divorce from her husband, Roland Oliver, son of William Letts Oliver, an Oakland capitalist and well known in social circles. While Oliver denied any knowledge of his wife's contemplated action, or reported action, close friends of the couple declare that it was owing to incompatibility of temper that Mrs. Oliver left Oakland about two years ago for a European tour, and that it was to enable her husband to sue for a divorce that she has remained away so long. It is also whispered that if Oliver declines to ask for a severance of the marriage ties, Mrs. Oliver will bring suit in the French courts. In letters to close friends in San Francisco and Oakland Mrs. Oliver has intimated her intention of making her home abroad, and so her friends allege, has stated definitely that she will make her debut on the stage in Paris.

She has been noted for her sweet temper and for her dramatic talent. It is reported by friends that she expressed a desire to appear on the stage in San Francisco, but that opposition from her husband's family resulted in her yielding and contenting herself with the ordinary round of social gaiety. Her dramatic aspirations, however, were stronger than her love for the life of a society woman, and she left for abroad. Mrs. Oliver was the favorite of the late Mrs. F. M. Smith, and is independently wealthy in her own name. She is the owner of a famous set of jewels given to the late Mrs. Smith.—The Wasp.

If the Other Were Away

There has been a reiterated statement that Princess Kowanaka has given more than half-hearted return to the attentions of the young man who half-won the heart of Edna Goodrich before her Goodrich won the larger interest. The young man has proved how happy he can be with one dear charmer whilst 't'other dear charmer is away. No, the absent charmer is not the fair Edna, whose charms have ceased to accelerate the pulse of the young man. "T'other charmer" is a very young girl who has not made her debut in society. Her home is in an interior town, but she spends most of her time with her married sister, who is a member of the smart young married set. The young girl is now traveling in Europe, and it is said the trip was precipitated by the attentions of the aforementioned man. Her family considered her altogether too young to become a victim of Cupid. Probably if the Princess Kowanaka had appeared on the scene a little sooner the European trip would have been spoiled, for the over-anxious mother would have realized that she has defective eyes when it comes to sighting genuine danger signals. The Hawaiian princess and her devoted cavalier apparently are flying the unmistakable signals that Cupid is on the right tack.—News Letter.

Are the Friends a Little Shy?

The other day a prominent young society man left for New York and Europe on a business deal. His wife is devoted to travel, and even the presence of a young child in the nursery did not account to her friends for her determination to stay home. "Why, I'll tell you why I didn't go," she volunteered to some thirty tea guests. "My husband says I'm too extravagant, that I spend too much money, and he wants me to retrench. He complained that I brought back the most expensive things I could find as gifts for my friends when we came back from Europe six months ago, and he was afraid I'd do the same thing over again." Which frank and truthful explanation is partly responsible for the rumor that they are very cramped for money, and the "I told you so's" have been going about saying that the hurried trip abroad is a last resort to raise capital for his expensive enterprises. But those who know scoff at this exaggerated version, and insist that he merely desires his wife to put a brake on the extravagances which have been shared with so many friends that it is a pity he would get nervous. A baby Irish lace dress is one of the "small" testimonials of affection, this young matron recently bestowed upon her most intimate friend in the Burlingame set.—News Letter.

A Lively Contest Is On

The political contest for membership on the Board of Education now being waged by those two very prominent Berkeley matrons, Mrs. Elmer Carlisle and Mrs. J. B. Hume, is attracting notable attention not only in the university town, but in the city of Berkeley. Both ladies have been signally honored by their sex. Mrs. Hume has been president of the State Federation of Women's Clubs and Mrs. Carlisle is president of the Berkeley Mothers Clubs of Alameda county. Both women have enjoyed motherhood.

Mrs. Carlisle had an extraordinary experience with her wedded life. Her husband was a shrewd and canny Scotchman of keen business acumen, but his ideas of wives had a singular crook. For many years he led his wife to believe that he was barely making enough money in his private business to meet the household requirements. Occasionally one directed her share of the domestic life to meet his purse-strings. Now and then he would provide a trip East or a house improvement that would surprise her, but he invariably introduced any such outlay with the statement that he had made an unexpected little windfall in business. On his demise his wife was astounded to learn that in his canny Scotch way he had accumulated and had bequeathed to her a large estate. The sudden opening of this floodgate of fortune brought the consequent reaction on the old-time restrictions, and it is said the first month she spent $15,000 in buying rugs and pictures for their large Berkeley home. The married daughter was promptly presented with a handsome house in Pasadena, and Mrs. Carlisle surrounded herself with all the padded comforts and cultured prospects which had decorated her youth. Forthwith she also entered into those rewards which her long and elevating work in Berkeley charity, civic and social work entitled her.—The Wasp.

When Ballard Wrecked the Mine

I saw John Ballard on the street a few days ago and the sight of him revived many old memories. He is just as big and husky as of yore, but not so prosperous looking. Fortune has not been as kind to him as it has been to his former associates in the mining business. W. H. Martin and Captain Nevills. It will be remembered by old-timers that Ballard and Martin built the Powell street cable road and afterwards embarked in the mining business with Nevills. Martin is a physical wreck now, while Nevills and Ballard are still full of vim and vigor. The three only Ballard has been flouted by the goddess of luck. The three men used to fight bitterly among themselves and one story of their triangular contest has never been told, so far as I know, although the papers were full of their doings. Ballard used to say that the reason he always kept his hands in his pockets (which was characteristic of his) was that he was afraid that if he took them out he would assault Nevills. At the height of the trouble between the three men Ballard went up to Tuolumne county, intent on revenge himself on Martin and Nevills. The mine had ceased paying dividends. "I'll blow the old hole out of the ground," Ballard declared. So he ordered all the workmen from the mine and set a charge of dynamite. When the charge exploded it blew a tremendous hole in the mine, but instead of destroying Rawhide, it uncovered the richest ore in its history. With the money they took out as a result of Ballard's action the three men were able to buy the great App mine.—Town Talk.

Yarn of Two Shirtwaists

This is another bit of wearing-apparel-gossip. It concerns a charming matron—in society all matrons are charming, as all maids are beautiful—whose pretty country home was burned down some time ago. She lost her entire wardrobe, a truly terrifying loss. Several of her friends were abroad at the time and wrote in a consolatory vein, promising to bring her pretty things to replace those that were gone beyond recall. One lady who was in Paris wrote about two wonderful shirtwaists which she had bought for her. When this traveler returned, the shirtwaists were not forthcoming. They were at the bottom of a trunk which had been unpacked. They had been sent to the laundry, having been soiled in the long journey home and so on. Finally those two shirtwaists got on the nerves of the matron for whom they had been bought. They haunted her—or perhaps obsessed is a better word. Instead of forgetting all about them, she told the returned traveler, "I'll not accept them unless you allow me to pay for them." This had the required effect. The shirtwaists were brought forth and sold to her for twenty-five dollars apiece. They are not worth more than five dollars apiece, but the lady considered them a bargain for the money they cost to cast all the peace of mind she possessed. The two ladies, it may be said in passing, are still friends.—Town Talk.

Mrs. Peter Martin's Perennial Youth

Mrs. Peter Martin has a becoming new burnt tinge to her hair that is the result of doubt of her life in an open air. She is wearing a moss green velvet gown with it and it is possible is more strikingly handsome than ever in the combination. One of her admiring friends, and there are many of them, tells me that Mrs. Martin is the most tactful young woman in society. She has the social graces in-born, but in her family and family relations there is a great deal to be praised. The elder Mrs. Martin is justly admired for her stunning daughter-in-law who relieves her of many responsibilities.—Town Talk.

Jere Burke and the Chaplain

Up in Sacramento they told a good story about Jere Burke a few days ago. It had to do with the Legislature of 1897 when Rev. Charles L. Miel was chaplain of the Senate. Dr. Miel was noted for the brevity of his prayers which consisted every morning of the Our Father and a few extempore words, the entire invocation lasting from twenty to twenty-five seconds. One morning Jere Burke, who had been a school mate of Dr. Miel, met the chaplain in the lobby and with profuse apologies for the liberty he was taking, explained that some of the legislators thought the invocation was a little too brief. He suggested that the extempore portion be lengthened a little and assured the chaplain that if this was done, everybody would be satisfied. The chaplain accepted the suggestion in good part and promised to pray a few seconds longer thereafter. "Begin this morning," advised Burke and again Dr. Miel acquiesced. It had been noted throughout the session that Senators Denison and Voorhies, who sat together, seemed very devout during the prayers. They inclined their heads very low and invariably, when the amen was spoken, one handed the other a cigar. A curious newspaper man investigated and found that the senators had stop watches and bet a cigar every morning on the length of the prayer. On the morning that Jere Burke spoke to the chaplain, Denison raised his head at the amen and it was noticed that his face was very pale. He had been winning cigars steadily from Voorhies, but this morning the prayer had lasted thirty-five seconds and Denison lost to Voorhies, not a cigar but a case of champagne, for they had decided to plunge. Senator Voorhies and Jere Burke enjoyed that wine but Denison never bet again.—Town Talk.

Mrs. Darling's Symposium

Whenever the bavardes of the press have nothing else to write about they take up the subject of a salon, and after telling us that it is just the thing we need they speculate as to the person most qualified to play the part of a Maintenon or a Duchesse du Maine. I remember that Mrs. John A. Darling, the most illustrious member of the Hastings clan, has been more than once nominated for the difficult role, and now I wish to concur in the nomination, and for the reason which she has been so long by the way, she pronounces her qualified for the distinction. I believe Mrs. Darling is the only woman in San Francisco possessing the tact, the courage and the power to pull off a symposium such as the one that she had at her home one night last week. Of this affair nothing has been said by the bavardes. For Mrs. Darling has no press agent. An unconventional woman is Mrs. Darling; so much so that she doesn't even entertain her friends in the limelight. The friends she entertained last week were among our most distinguished citizens. They were gentlemen who seldom have the pleasure of relaxation in one another's society, and for that reason, if for no other reason, the affair was unique. But there is another reason: It was a semi-staff affair; that is, the men possessing wives were separated from their wives for that occasion. No small achievement in itself. The only lady who assisted Mrs. Darling in levelling the masculinity of the occasion was that sprightly dowager Mrs. Eleanor Martin.

The men who dined with Mr. and Mrs. Darling were William F. Herrin, Judge J. F. Coffey, Jere Coffey, Judge Cooper, Thomas Dozier, Peter F. Dunne and Louis Hoefler, Judge Thomas F. Graham was invited, I hear, but was unable to attend. Perhaps if he had been present he might have exhibited his talent for reconciliation, since on this occasion Judge Cooper and Tom Dozier were given the floor on the Ruef case. This debate was the piece de resistance of the symposium. Judge Cooper was the man that wrote the opinion of the Court of Appeal and Tom Dozier was one of Ruef's attorneys. Dozier is convinced that his client didn't get a square deal. Moreover he is convinced that Judge Cooper wanted away from the record in order to find justification for the decision. Bringing Judge Cooper and Tom Dozier together at a dinner was like associating a lighted match with something combustible soaked in kerosene. The inevitable happened. Tom Dozier was loaded for bear and Judge Cooper was in an open country with no shelter in sight. Mr. Herrin and Mr. Dunne took a deep interest in the discussion, making suggestions here and there that served as prods whenever the controversy lagged. But at no stage of the controversy did there much need of a stimulant. The bars were down, Dozier went at it hammer and tongs fashion, and Judge Cooper was very much on the defensive. It is to be hoped that Mrs. Darling will continue to fan the flame of controversy with the wing of hospitality.—Town Talk.

SAVE YOUR HAIR

While You Have Hair to Save, Use Newbro's Herpicide.

Every woman who is obliged to wear false hair or man a toupee, feels that it is a misfortune. What makes the burden so doubly hard to bear is the knowledge that the loss of natural hair could, in most instances, have been easily avoided.

The arch enemy of good hair is the dandruff germ. This is now a well established scientific fact. There is one remedy on the market which, used regularly, will kill the germ and keep out every trace of dandruff. This remedy is Newbro's Herpicide, long known as the Original Dandruff Germ Destroyer. By keeping the scalp clean, Herpicide not only prevents the hair from falling out, but allows it to grow as nature intended. Begun in time and its use persisted in, this valuable remedy insures a nice, healthy head of hair.

Herpicide imparts a life and luster to dull, dead, brittle hair, making it light, fluffy and beautiful.

Don't wait. Begin now to save your hair. Herpicide is sold and guaranteed in one dollar size bottles by all druggists. Applications may be procured at the better barber shops and hair dressers. A nice sample and booklet on the care of the hair will be sent to any one upon receipt of 10c in postage or silver. Address: The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

What Imagination Will do for You

Giuseppe Cadenasso is a wonderful artist. Moreover, he is a very charming person to meet and know. Like most people of poetic temperament, he is blessed with a vivid imagination. It's part of his stock in trade. However, he is quite able to appreciate a joke, and when it's one on him he enjoys it immensely.

For some time past he has been devoting one or two mornings a week to a class of young ladies at Mills College, whom he is endeavoring to instruct in the proper and effectual way of handling paints, whether it be for houses, pictures or faces. During the recent cold spell, the big stove in the college recreation hall was exceedingly popular, and often the artist found it impossible to penetrate the bodyguard of maids thrown out around it ten deep or more. One day, in a state of anxious shivers, he cast his eyes about for relief, the stove being, as usual, well attended, when to his unspeakable relief he espied a hot register over in the corner.

Now, the average male, when suffering, is apt to be selfish. Cadenasso was freezing, so for fear he would be asked to share his find, he kept most unchivalrously silent. Day after day did he resort to the hot air register for comfort, and always he shared its gracious warmth alone. The other morning he was occupying his register when into the room came an old acquaintance. Crossing over he slid aside the greasy hot register. "My dear Mr. Cadenasso," exclaimed the lady, "what sort of weather is this for California? I give you my word, I am almost frozen."

All the gallantry which Cadenasso is famed for to the surface at one bound. "Come with me," he said, and led the way to his lonely register over in the corner. "Just stand on this," he remarked, "and you'll be warm as toast in a minute." The lady surveyed him in astonishment for a minute. "Why, there's no heat in that thing," she said, "and I'm not interested in it." And the artist, stopping on to the register. "Why, I'm warm already," he added, enthusiastically.

But the lady began to laugh. "Why, Mr. Cadenasso," she exclaimed, "there hasn't been a fire in the furnace for the past three years. It's entire out of commission. Why, feel the draft," as Cadenasso looked unconvinced. "And sure enough," said the painter, "instead of hot air, there was a draft of cold air coming up through that opening there was no heat in it." The lady was so much amused by the story that she stepped on to the register. "Why, I'm warm already," he added, enthusiastically.

Harem Skirt Won the Crowd

That man, even a great man like Roosevelt, the mighty Nimrod, cuts an exceedingly poor figure when it comes to a woman in a harem skirt, was proven without a doubt the other day. Roosevelt was due to appear at the St. Francis Hotel, and one and all the populace thronged St. Francis, possessed with a fervent desire to flittingly greet the great man. Policemen fought to maintain order; the crowd surged all the more. The windows of the fashionable hostelry were filled to overflowing with the would-be spectators, and secret service men buzzed about the congregated groups like so many bees. In the midst of it all came two innocent-looking maids side by side up the street and into the main entrance of the hotel, when horrors upon top of horrors! somebody spun a slit in their skirts—a man, of course. With dainty chins in the air, to all appearances serenely unconscious of the fact that they had suddenly become the cynosure of all eyes, they proceeded on their way. And the harem skirts went, too, with many a flap and a just a tantalizing suggestion of a trouser effect every once in a while. For a moment the crowd wavered, but not for long. With one accord, they followed the disciples of the new skirt, up to the flower stand, on to the tapestry room, and they may be going yet for all I know. Suffice it to say that when Colonel Roosevelt finally did appear on the scene of action there wasn't even a lone bell-boy to give vent to an enthusiastic whoop, and the Colonel bowed his head and indulged in reflections upon the fickleness of the great American public.—News Letter.

Who Put in the Green Ink?

A stock exchange is one thing and green ink is another. Emmet P. Barrett is one person and Emanuel Epstein is another. But they belong to the stock exchange. Barrett weighs two hundred and fifty pounds and Epstein is not so heavy—not nearly so heavy. It was a very insignificant dispute at first, but how it grew. Just because a man is of huge proportions is no proof of his arguments, and he has no right to try and put it over a little brother. One of the trades, you see, had behaved queerly, and that is how the difference of opinion came about. Besides the difference of opinion there was Nat Boas, alias Adonis, nicknamed "Donnie." It has always been the ambition of "Donnie" to get as many of the real ring event. Here was his opportunity at last. So with towels, buckets of water, and sponges, "Donnie" made his appearance and demanded that the difference of opinion be settled. Thomas Robinson proffered his services as the other second. Who it was poured green ink into each of the sponges has never been discovered, nor was it then discovered that it had been poured. Broadly smiling, the members of the exchange looked on. Things had become so hot that the seconds found it necessary to sponge their principals before the opening round, which never opened. It was here that the green ink made its appearance on the faces and clothes of the spongers. With a green light in his eye Barrett regarded Boas, his second. "A pretty trick," he fumed. "How do you expect me to get this off?" "Oh, that's all right," returned the second suavely. "It's green." "The devil—it's on me, isn't it, if it is green?" "Of course; but by and by it will be in you, and according to the color, you should then be able to lick your weight in wildcats."—News Letter.

Just Some Reminiscences

Clay Greene's first successful play, "Struck Oil," was based on the fortunes of an old German who found an oil well in Pennsylvania. At that time nobody imagined that California would ever rival Pennsylvania as a producer of mineral oil. This was then a land of mining and wheat cultivation. Clay Greene was one of the leading lights of the old Bohemian Club, and when his play met with such success his enthusiastic fellow-members saw a future for him only surpassed by the fame of Shakespeare. Clay was never glutton for hard work, and perhaps for that reason the Bard of Avon still wears the laurels. The young Bohemian Clubman of Golden Gate Park capped as a professional writer by the fact that he had a rich and fond mother—an estimable pioneer lady who lived in an old-fashioned but very comfortable residence on spacious grounds occupying a large part of the block bounded by Eleventh, Twelfth, Mission and Market streets. In the early days many of the pioneer residents of social prominence established suburban homes in the Mission warm belt. Mayor Frank McCoppin, to whom San Francisco is largely indebted for the granting of Golden Gate Park, lived on Valencia street near Eighteenth street. The extensive property is now owned by the Phelan family, James Phelan Sr., having bought it from McCoppin, who did not grow richer as he grew older. John F. Swift, a famous lawyer, established his home a couple of blocks beyond the McCoppin residence. The Spreckels family lived in the Mission in early days, but when the army of nat and college dwellers invaded the warm belt the local aristocracy moved its perambulations to the more exclusive and foggy region of the northwest of San Francisco.—The Wasp.

Stunning Dresses and Jewels

One wing of local society has paid a deal of complimentary attention to Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Thomas, who have been browsing around the world on their bridal trip, and did the Orient completely before arriving here last week. Mrs. Thomas was in the limelight awhile ago while seeking a divorce from Frank J. Gould, one of the railroad magnates. They were true to the Western dictum that the divorce court is simply the entrance to the marriage altar, for the ceremony arrived before the divorce decree was made. Frank J. Gould followed the Gould instinct and married a pretty actress, Miss Edith Kelly. His cronies regarded this as a happy compliment to his divorced wife, for the latter was the daughter of Edward Kelly, a well-known New York banker and an inveterate hater of the Goulds and their policies. As in most of these social matrimonial entanglements, Mrs. Thomas still retains an open partnership with her ex-husband in their two children, Dorothy and Helen Gould, aged 6 and 8 years respectively. By the court's decision she has them in her custody six months of the year, and the father houses them for the balance of the period. Ralph Hill Thomas, the present husband, is a nephew of Washington B. Thomas, president of the sugar trust, and holds a remunerative position in that well-bulwarked corporation. He and his wife are therefore in a financial position to entertain lavishly, and they have been doing it in a way to set a sumptuous pace locally. Mrs. Thomas has graced these occasions in gowns that have made the bias members of the best-dressed set in the hotel sit up with sparkling eyes of interest and take notice. And her jewels! Nothing has come to town to surpass their infinite variety since the soldiers returned with the loot of Peking, following the Boxer trouble.—The Wasp.

NATURE BECKONS CITY PEOPLE

Charming Environments of Oakland Hills Make Rapid Selling.

A surprising feature connected with the sale of Fourth Avenue Heights, the new residence tract of the Wickham Home Company, has been the revealing of what large proportion of Oakland residents are both unacquainted with and unaware of the wild and beautiful country that is within a few minutes' drive of the city. Those familiar with the long roads that are necessary in other cities to reach anything to compare with the wild beauty of the hills and canyons surrounding the city of Oakland Heights are quite astonished when the Fourth Avenue cars in a ride of fifteen minutes from the business section of Oakland to views of pastoral landscape and ravines that are worthy of a painter's brush.

"There are of course more strangers in the city than ever before in the history of the city of Oakland," said Sales Manager Edgar A. Jones of the Wickham Home Company, "but the Oaklanders who are strangers to the beauty spots of Oakland Heights are their own city are surprisingly large in number. In the crowds attending the opening sales of Fourth Avenue Heights you would find absolutely astonished at the large proportion of the country within two miles of the city, and who stated with a laugh at their own expense that they had never been through either Dimond Canyon or Trestle Glen.

"There are few cities of the country where such a short car ride will attain such a variety of beautiful views and wild recreation spots as can be enjoyed. This fact would be sufficient to account for the success of the tract, but even if it were not, the prices and terms were not the least any property in the Piedmont Hills has ever been offered at.

"The wooded rolling green hills with all the effect of an English landscape are the features of the country surrounding this property, while the broad expanse of San Francisco Bay can be seen in great advantage in a few minutes' time from any lot in the tract. The secluded depths and musical waters of Dimond Canyon or Trestle Glen can be reached, bounding as they do on two sides of the tract, in a few minutes' time from a five-cent fare. It is little wonder that strangers are surprised when they visit."

KIDNAPERS CLOSELY TRAILED

Abductor Steals Horses and With Fresh Mounts Flee for Railway

Posse Close in from All Sides in an Effort to Take Men

EAST LAS VEGAS, N. M., April 1.—Reports began coming in by telephone today from posse in search of the abductors of Waldo Rogers. One from Cuervo, 56 miles southeast of here, states that a posse, headed by J. D. Hand, a ranchman and dead shot, got a trace of three heavily-armed men riding across the country in an apparent effort to reach the Rock Island railroad. This posse was two hours behind the men, who are reported to have stolen three horses. The horses were taken from a ranch near Cuervo at daylight, giving them a fresh start with new mounts. The posse hoped to come up with them by noon. Posse left Santa Rosa and Montoya with a view of intercepting the men. Excitement here over the kidnapping is at fever heat. A score of detectives from Kansas City, Denver and El Paso arrived last night and are working on the case. Important clues are being run down in this city.

It is believed that as many as six persons were concerned in the child-stealing.

BULLOCK REFUTES CLAIMS OF FOX

Ex-Councilman Shows Where Candidate Is in Error.

ALAMEDA, April 1.—Councilman E. B. Bullock, chairman of the finance committee of the City Council, who is a candidate for reelection, today refuted the claims of George H. Fox, candidate for mayor against the incumbent, Mayor W. H. Hoy, to the effect that the municipal tax has increased from $775,822 in 1906 to $268,034.71, a total increase of $82,421.55 or 47 per cent.

Councilman Bullock, in his statement, shows the amount of improvement effected in the city within the last four years which have necessitated the increase.

Candidate Fox is using the fact that the tax has increased from $128 in 1906 to $140 in 1910 as an argument in favor of his candidacy.

BULLOCK REPLIES.

Following is Councilman Bullock's statement in part:

"To the Citizens of Alameda: "My attention has been called to cards that have been distributed and statement published in the press, purporting to give 'home authentic figures' covering the last five years of public financial administration in the city of Alameda. "According to these figures, the total income on assessed valuation in 1906 was $175,612.55 and the total income derived from the assessed valuation in 1910 was $268,034.71, the latter figure including the income from high school collected by the county. These figures would seem to indicate an increase of $82,421.55 over 1906.

ERROR OF $47,688.69.

"In the figures given for 1910 there is an error of $47,688.69, since the budget of the high school board asked for $27,000, while the figures given include $21,768.69 for high school purposes. "In fact, the correct increase would be $77,662.31.

"To show how this increase came about, I have taken the following figures from the official records of the city: Since 1906, $485,000 in bonds has been voted for by the people, there being an interest and redemption fund for this year $42,582, as against $19,743 in 1906, which makes an increase over 1906 of $22,839.

"Another large increase in the budget is due to the maintenance of the city, which cost $15,000 in 1906. Nothing was allowed for this purpose in 1906.

"The total amount for grammar and high schools levied on the city in 1906 was $40,000. In 1910 the amount allowed for these schools was $64,000, which is an increase of $24,000 over 1906.

"The fire department in 1906 expended $36,728. In 1910 it was allowed $40,677, an increase of $3,949.

"In 1906 the police department spent $20,111. In 1910 this department was allowed $32,447, making an increase of $12,336.

"This increase is due to the addition of elite policemen and to better equipment, including the combination patrol-ambulance. This ambulance was needed for years in case of accidents and its acquisition was an expenditure of $1,000, of which our citizens have recognized that the administration of the past four years has been progressive, and at the same time economical, for the increase in the expenses of each department herein mentioned has been more than equalled by increase in efficiency."

VARIOUS STREET DEPARTMENTS.

"The street department in 1906 expended $34,290. In 1910 the same department was allowed $39,940, an increase of $5,650.

"The health department was allowed $200 in 1906. In 1910 the department was allowed $4,458, an increase of $4,258.

"The fire department in 1906 expended $36,728. In 1910 it was allowed $40,677, an increase of $3,949.

"In 1906 the police department spent $20,111. In 1910 this department was allowed $32,447, making an increase of $12,336.

WANTS TO DEPORT THIEF WITH BAD POLICE RECORD

STRADELLO MARCELLO, whom Superior Judge F. B. Ogden wants the Federal authorities to deport.

Holding, since his conviction of burglary in the second degree, that Stradello Marcello, an Italian laborer with a bad previous police record, is an undesirable alien, Superior Judge Frank B. Ogden today directed Deputy District Attorney Satterwhite to take steps to have the prisoner deported. The latter immediately directed a letter to Luther Steward, acting commissioner of immigration at Angel Island, with this object in view. Judge Ogden wants the matter settled one way or the other before he passes sentence upon the culprit next Thursday morning, because should judgment be pronounced in favor of deportation, it would preclude any other disposition of the case.

Marcello was recently arrested under the name of Egan Russell for breaking into an apartment house under construction at the corner of Forty-first and Webster streets and stealing tools. He was convicted in Judge Ogden's court last Wednesday and during his trial it developed that he had been arrested many times as a petty offender.

—Webster, Photo.

THE Ebell Club, at its meeting on Tuesday afternoon, scored one of the most successful afternoons of the season. The large audience assembled thoroughly enjoyed the stereopticon lecture given them by Mrs. Louise Turner Hodgdon, a very clever Eastern woman who has been spending in California some weeks of the spring.

Mrs. Turner, who comes from Brookline, the very wealthy suburb of Boston, is a most charming woman, who is also a notable club woman, being a member of leading clubs in Boston, and also belonging to the famous Colonial Dames. She has recently made a trip around the world, and collected therein data for a lecture for her clubs in Boston. Mrs. Woodbury, with her usual foresight and with her zeal for the best interests of the Ebell Club, asked Mrs. Hodgdon to give her lecture here, and a most interesting and delightful lecture it proved to be.

Mrs. Hodgdon has a fine personality and is a very attractive speaker. Her lecture was most picturesque, the word pictures being exceptionally well drawn, and there was a human interest in the story—touches of wit, of humor, that brought their own special appeal. Indeed, Mrs. Hodgdon's lecture compared very favorably with those of Burton Holmes, which have been so successful all over the country. It is a very difficult matter to lecture on "A Trip Around the World"—there is so much material from which to choose—and Mrs. Hodgdon showed great skill in her selection, choosing not so many pictures but most important ones. It is very rare for an amateur lecturer to do so well, and one has never been "personally conducted" in a more charming fashion.

And so it happened that the Ebell Club members were really a party of tourists who set sail from New York on the good ship Cleveland, bound for a tour of the world. They stopped at the island of Madeira, at Gibraltar, and they made a delightful stay at Naples. Then away they sailed to Port Said, and the tourists went by rail to Cairo. Such lovely sunset scenes as there were on the Nile, and on the wide desert at the Pyramids! The trip lay through the Red Sea, and to Bombay, around to Calcutta, to Rangoon in Burmah, and there was a visit to "The Wild Man of Borneo" in his native home. Then on to Ceylon, to Japan and China, and a visit that was among the most picturesque and fascinating was made at Manila. There was real enthusiasm in the audience as the big steamer came through the Golden Gate in all the glory of a late sunset, and the tribute to California was greatly appreciated. A clever woman, who has been all around the world, has standards of measurement, and it was evident that by these standards California has scored well.

After the lecture there was an informal reception, when the members of Ebell had an opportunity of meeting Mrs. Hodgdon and of thanking her for the pleasure her lecture afforded them.

Tea was poured by Mrs. T. C. Coogan and by Mrs. Bert S. Hubbard, and the receiving hostess of the day was Mrs. George Newton, and among the many club women present during the afternoon were:

Mrs. Charles J. Wood-	Mrs. Mollie Conners
Mrs. Charles Leonard	Mrs. Edward Benjamin
Mrs. Ernest Tanner	Mrs. Arthur Frank
Mrs. Charles H. King	Mrs. Seymour Hall
Mrs. Ernest Tanner	Mrs. Florence Henshaw
Mrs. Charles H. King	Mrs. J. A. Scupham
Mrs. Ernest Tanner	Mrs. C. W. Klusey
Mrs. Charles H. King	Mrs. P. B. Ogden
Mrs. Ernest Tanner	Mrs. A. L. Adams
Mrs. Charles H. King	Mrs. A. R. Dabney
Mrs. Ernest Tanner	Mrs. J. C. Dwyer
Mrs. Charles H. King	Mrs. J. Lorain Pease
Mrs. Ernest Tanner	Mrs. George Cross
Mrs. Charles H. King	Mrs. Charles R. Howe
Mrs. Ernest Tanner	Mrs. James A. Johnson
Mrs. Charles H. King	Mrs. A. G. Glascock
Mrs. Ernest Tanner	Mrs. Henderson Pease
Mrs. Charles H. King	Mrs. John F. Swift
Mrs. Ernest Tanner	Mrs. Samuel Taylor
Mrs. Charles H. King	Mrs. Miss Phoebe Smith

The musical numbers of the afternoon were planned by Mrs. Hodgdon and were admirably chosen. The young girl soloist had a wonderful voice, and as the tourists sailed away from Naples there echoed the fascinating strains of the picturesque "Santa Lucia" of the fishermen. The speaker paused in her lecture on India, and one heard the splendid rhythm of Kipling's

"On the road to Mandalay.
Where the flying fishes play,
And the dawn comes up like thunder,
Out of China across the bay."

And in due course we arrived at Hawaii, over which floats the American flag. But it was not martial music that we heard, but the beautifully pathetic strains of the Hawaiian "Aloha, Aloha."

The afternoon was as instructive as it was interesting, and was greatly enjoyed by a large number of guests.

EBELL CLUB TO DISCUSS SUFFRAGE.

At last the Ebell Club is to have a "suffrage discussion," following the trend of the times, of course. Politics and religion are two subjects tabooed in the Ebell Club according to a certain unwritten law. And the same thing has been true of the vexed topic of "woman suffrage." But the subject can no longer lie dormant, for the club must stand for or against suffrage in the State Federation, and the delegates must be instructed how to vote—hence the discussion.

Mrs. Woodbury announces that it is not going to be "a discussion." Two charming women, both good speakers, have been invited to give their "views," or opinions, on the subject. But of course each will sum up the arguments for her side. There are some very strong advocates of "votes for women" in the Ebell Club, as elsewhere, so the outcome is looked upon with great interest. And even though no definite conclusion may be reached, a discussion is always in order, and is sure to help any good movement along.

GOWNS AT THE EBELL WERE ATTRACTIVE.

The gowns worn at the Ebell Club on Tuesday were of very special interest, reflecting as they did the spirit of the spring styles, and many of the new spring hats were really charming.

And apropos of gowns, Mrs. Roosevelt and her daughter, Miss Ethel Roosevelt, have been the center of interest this week, and their gowns have, of course, absorbed the attention of the onlooker. Mrs. Roosevelt is very petite, and very much prettier than her pictures. She has an exceedingly sweet expression, which her photographs fail to reproduce. She has charm of manner and much distinction and dignity. She is very fond of pale lavender, and looked exceedingly well in a dinner gown of lavender satin at the dinner given for her by the Theodore Roosevelts Jr.

Miss Ethel Roosevelt's dinner gown was an exquisite creation in Alice blue satin, the corsage beautifully trimmed in lace and in bead passementerie to match the gown. Miss Roosevelt does not wear any jewelry and her hair is very simply done, so that she is very youthful in appearance and she has frank, charming manners.

Mrs. Roosevelt and her daughter were guests at the St. Francis for afternoon tea, and of course their very modish New York gowns were well observed by the various guests at the many tables of the cafe.

Mrs. Roosevelt wore a very pretty pongee gown embroidered in the same pongee tones, and she wore a hat of pongee-colored straw braid, trimmed with the new effects in baby ostrich feathers.

Miss Ethel Roosevelt has a calling or afternoon gown of seal brown velvet, with a perfectly plain coat in the straight-line style. She is wearing with it her winter hat, a wide effect in seal brown velvet, trimmed with a large pink rose.

The natty one-piece dresses are much in evidence in these spring days, and worn with a spring hat they are most becoming.

Mrs. Frederick McNear is wearing a dark blue serge, a pretty one-piece gown. Mrs. Peter Martin has one of these gowns, and so also has Mrs. Harry Chickering (Aila Henshaw).

Mrs. Gordon Stolp was in the receiving party at the Ebell Club on Tuesday, and she was very attractively gowned in black velvet, the corsage showing an exceedingly fine arrangement of point lace.

Mrs. George Newton, the receiving hostess, was gowned in black satin, the becoming gown trimmed in black lace and unrelieved by any other color.

In fact black, or black and white, seem to be the prevailing color tones, even among the younger girls. Miss Eliza McMullin brings the latest cry from New York, and she appears now everywhere in black, the small toque having trimmings of jade green. Even the long earrings which she wears are black—given her by her grandmother, who wore them fifty years ago. It might be remarked, however, that many of our young people would do well to follow Miss Ethel Roosevelt's example and wear little or no jewelry. And long earrings are very seldom becoming to a bright young face.

Mrs. Hodgdon, who gave the lecture at Ebell on Tuesday, was exceedingly well gowned. Her costume was in tones of black and white, the gown of velvet was set off by a wide hat in tones of black and white, and she wore superb diamonds.

Mrs. John F. Swift is a very notable study always, and she dresses extremely well. Her gowns are always in black, and her evening gowns are most effective, in satin and rare lace, the corsage cut with the V neck.

In fact, all the latest New York evening gowns show the V effect in the corsage.

Mrs. Hearst is wearing gray a great deal this year, and she chooses the gray of specially fascinating tones. Her gowns have always touches of beautiful and rare lace, and her jewels show the greatest taste and refinement, and they, of course, represent rare and valuable treasures.

Mrs. Requa has been wearing lavender this year, both in her tailored gowns and in her evening clothes, and her gowns are set off with stones to match, since Mrs. Requa has the rarest and most valuable collection of amethysts on this side of the bay.

Mrs. Frank C. Havens brought back from New York some very fascinating evening gowns; one of them shows the pale coral shade in satin, now so fashionable. Its Oriental trimming is most artistically planned, and Mrs. Havens wears with the beautiful gown exceedingly handsome rubies.

COLOR OF GOWNS MATCH STONES.

Many hostesses are choosing the color of their gowns to match certain stones in their jewels. One Eastern hostess received her guests in a gown of black lace, with most elaborate turquoise trimmings and a superb necklace of turquoise stones, with rings and earrings to match, completed the costume.

A wave of Oriental color has swept over the East this spring, and the streets of New York are alive with waves of vivid coloring. For the two colors that are most fashionable are cerise and royal purple. Cerise is the touch of color to be put on black hats, on blue gowns, on white serge suits, and it is widely used for separate blouses. And the most amazingly fashionable blouse this season is the cerise satin one. It is the one tone of red that fewest women can wear, and yet it is the tone that outranks all others. One would expect California to develop Oriental coloring—one sees so much of it here—but that the wise, and staid, and conservative East should develop a riot of color tones is amazing indeed. There are cerise cravats, cerise silk stockings, cerise slippers—in fact there are many places in one's costume where this brilliant touch of red may be used. And as a last final bit of advice you read:

"You may not like cerise, and it may not be becoming to you, but if you want to be in the fashion you must add a bit of it to your costume in the place where it will not affect your looks."

Velvet has played a large part in the gowns of the winter, and among the handsomest effects in velvet have been the gowns brought from the East last winter by Mrs. F. M. Smith.

Mrs. Wickham Havens has also had some handsome velvet gowns, and she has been wearing yellow, a great deal this winter, that being very becoming to her brunette type of beauty.

One sees Mrs. George Hammer very often in lavender, and really that woman is to be congratulated who can in summer wear gowns in lovely lavender tones.

In the smart set it is color that is expressed in many ways. Last week a New York hostess received her guests in a gown of embroidered green chiffon over cloth-of-gold, with diamond ornaments. All the house and table decorations were of a brilliant velvety green, with gold introduced to relieve the vivid coloring. Everything, from the soup to the cigarettes, with the exception of the coffee, was green.

But with all every woman ought to be truly thankful for the times in which she lives. She is given such independence of thought, such power of self-expression along every line. One finds it everywhere in the dress of today, for there are styles that may suit everyone. One may dress simply or extravagantly, as one pleases. Henry James expressed the spirit of dress as seen today when he spoke of a young lady "so plainly dressed that she must either have been a lady's maid or a princess."

RETURN OF THE GAME OF EUCHRE.

One notes among the smart sets of the East, especially in New York and Boston, the return of "euchre" as a form of amusement for one's guests. There was a time when five-handed euchre swept everything before it, only to give way to "500."

The latter in turn yielded its place to bridge. The morning game has also come into much favor in the East, and cards sent out to the smart set read:

"Morning bridge and euchre, "Pivot bridge and euchre, with luncheon." "Pivot bridge." "Breakfast bridge." "Buffet luncheon and bridge." Nearly all of these invitations mean that one is planning to entertain a great many guests, and New York hostesses have found out that it is expedient to have euchre tables for those guests who play only an indifferent game of bridge. It is a question if the morning game could ever become very popular with us. Our women of the smart set are so athletic, so very much alive, and time is so valuable that very few of them would care to give up to cards the most valuable hours of their day.

OAKLAND PEOPLE ARE RETURNING.

Many well-known people who have been away for the winter are returning to our side of the bay for the summer. The Egbert Stones are giving up the house on Vallejo street, which they have occupied all the winter, and are opening their Elmhurst home. Each year, in cherry season, Mrs. Stone entertains the members of the Cosmos Club and many other friends at her country home. Miss Harriet Stone has had a delightful winter and has been a most attractive and very much liked young debutante. Her sister, Marian, will have her coming-out next season.

The Van Sicklens are also planning to return in the near future to their Alameda home. Miss Dorothy Van Sicklen knows a great many people across the bay and does much entertaining each season.

The Will Meeks spend the early part of each year in Antioch, where Mr. Meek is developing very valuable asparagus beds, and they always plan to open their San Lorenzo home in the summer.

After their marriage in the East the Seward McNears spent many months at the McNear family home here, so Mrs. McNear has many friends on our side of the bay, and the McNear family connection is a large one. The McNears make their home in Ross Valley almost all the year round, and they have just sold their very picturesque place there. They have taken the Albert Dibblee home for the season.

The Andrew Stones have spent the past winter at the Fairmont, but it is not likely that they will again return to Oakland to live permanently. Mrs. Stone is very fond of Burlingame, and they have taken the George Newhall home there, the Newhalls having planned to go abroad this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Titus are planning to come to this side of the bay in the near future, and they are to take up their residence for the present in the garage. But the latter is a six thousand dollar affair, and very picturesque, and the Tituses plan to be very comfortable in it till their new home is built. One hears that it is to be one of the most beautiful of the Piedmont homes.

Far up in the hills, beyond the Alexander home, is a superb tract of land covered with oaks, part of which constitute the Titus grounds. Many well-known people are planning to build there in the future, among them the Charles D. Bates.

The grounds of the Frank Havens place, of the Wickham Havens, of the Louis Titus and of Mrs. Requa make a residence district remarkable for beauty of design, as well as for natural endowment. The beautiful Requa grounds mark a growth of many years, and the gorgeous palms on the high plateau were planned by Mrs. Requa. For some years now Louis Titus has been planning the spacious grounds which are to surround his residence. Red roads wind around the hillsides, and brown stone bridges cross the brooks. The oaks are most picturesque, so is the tall eucalyptus grove, and wonderful flowers bloom everywhere.

The Havens have, in Wildwood, spacious grounds, almost unequaled in natural beauty, and great care is exercised in keeping the natural charm of the landscape.

And nowhere can a more beautiful garden in the springtime be seen than that of the Wickham Havens, the garden extending down the long slope of the hills to the charming

After the lecture there was an in-lake covered with water lilies.

Truly the Piedmont gardens bid fair to rival those of the Italian villas on the beautiful hill slopes of picturesque Naples.

Mr. Mark Requa returned last week from a business trip to New York city, and Mr. and Mrs. Requa are very busy now in completing the furnishing of their new home at Piedmont. It is on the higher range of hills and commands beautiful scenic views, and one hears that it is planned in a very picturesque fashion, for Mrs. Requa, as are all her sisters, is most artistic.

BRIDES-ELECT ARE BEING ENTERTAINED.

Two East Oakland brides-elect are being extensively entertained in these spring days, for both have planned April weddings. The charming young brides are Miss Alice Albright and Miss Susie Hall. Miss Albright is the attractive young daughter of Mrs. Robert Bain, and a niece of Mrs. Howard Bray. The Albrights have lived for many years in Fruitvale, and have many dear friends among the families who have lived so long in that neighborhood. Among them are the Bains, the Clays, the Husheas, Harrolds, the Sanborns and the Plaws.

Miss Susie Hall, the bright young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hall, has also lived all her life in East Oakland, where the old home of the Tubbs was a social center for so many years. Mrs. Edward Hall was formerly Miss Tubbs, and her sisters are Mrs. William G. Henshaw and Mrs. Florence Henshaw. So there are many social dates planned for the young daughter of the household.

Miss Susie Harrold gave a tea on Thursday afternoon, making Miss Hall and Miss Albright her guests of honor. About seventy-five were very hospitably entertained in the Harrold home, and the bright young hostess was assisted in receiving by the Misses Madeline Clay, Harriet Stone, Grace Downey, Florence Henshaw, Gladys Wilson and Georgia Creed.

Mrs. Jacob Green Jackson, who was formerly Miss Plaw, entertained on Tuesday at a very beautifully appointed luncheon, planned for Alice Albright. The table was a lovely study in violets, daffodils and fresias, and spring blossoms beautifully adorned the drawing-room. Among Mrs. Jackson's guests were Miss Susie Harrold, Miss Madeline Clay, Miss Grace Downey, Miss Gladys English, Miss Evelyn Adams and Miss Marie McHenry.

Miss Georgia Creed, who is to be one of Miss Hall's bridesmaids, is planning a delightful entertainment in the latter's honor and will probably entertain for the young bride early in May.

CLAREMONT AS A SOCIAL CENTER.

Claremont is rapidly pushing its way as a suburb of much social importance. The largest home is, of course, that of the H. H. Harts, and Mrs. Hart has already given several original entertainments in her new home. The Harts spent some months abroad, and since their return their friends have been made very welcome at their hospitable Claremont home.

Mr. Hart made a great deal of his money in the Alaska mines, and he entertained nearly a hundred guests recently, all of whom were Alaska men. It was called a "sour-dough" gathering, because the early Alaska pioneers were so named—since they passed on from camp to camp "sour-dough" to start the "raising" of new bread.

But many fortunes have been made along the trail of the "sour-doughs," and it is California's good fortune to spend the money provided by Alaska's wealth.

On last Saturday evening Mrs. H. Hamilton Hart was the hostess at a very delightful dance, her guests being the men of the Theta Delta Chi, Phi Delta Theta and Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternities. A number of Mrs. Hart's young girl friends were also invited for the evening. Dancing was the order of the hour, and at midnight a delightful supper was served.

At Claremont Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Tanner (Pearl King) have established a very beautiful home, and on the Claremont hills Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Kinsell have also built a new residence, which they have recently occupied.

The first entertainment given in this new home will be for Mrs. Louis Titus (Alice Rooney), who was a classmate of Mrs. Kinsell's in the University of California.

AN ENGAGEMENT SURPRISE.

At the tea given in San Francisco last week by Miss Hazel Pierce for Miss Crockett, a splendid surprise awaited the guests. The engagement of Miss Hazel Pierce and Mr. Percy Thurston Hinks was announced.

Miss Hazel Pierce is the second daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pierce, the family being exceedingly well known not only in Oakland but all over the state.

Mabel and Hazel Pierce both graduated from the Horton School, and later, both graduated with honors from Wellesley. Since the earthquake, the Pierces have lived in a handsome home on Russian Hill, which fortunately escaped the fire, and the Misses Pierce are exceedingly capable and popular girls.

Mr. Hinks is a relative of the well known Pierce family, who have such extensive interests in California. Mr. Hinks has one of the finest ranches in Santa Clara valley, and there the young people will make their permanent home, the wedding date having been set for June. Miss Crockett is an Eastern girl, who was a Wellesley classmate of Miss Hazel Pierce. The latter will go East for the commencement exercises at Wellesley in June.

MISS MARGUERITE OGDEN TO ENTERTAIN.

Miss Marguerite Ogden, the very clever daughter of Judge and Mrs. F. B. Ogden, has sent out cards for Saturday, April 8, for an informal afternoon in honor of Miss Charlotte Beach, whose engagement to Frederick Vickery was a recent announcement. Miss Ogden has asked to the informal affair only the most intimate friends of her guest of honor, and the young people are sure to enjoy the afternoon at the hospitable Ogden home. Miss Ogden scored a splendid record in the University of California and one hears that she is to follow in the footsteps of her father, Judge F. B. Ogden. Miss Ogden is to add to her university equipment a study of law, and it will make it her post-graduate work. Very few of the women college graduates study law, but among them have been Mrs. Frank Deering, Mrs. George Colby (Rachel Vrooman), and Mrs. Hart North (Emma Morgan).

MISS ALVISE GEBHARDT GIVES A TEA.

Miss Alvise Gebhardt, whose engagement to Jefferson Moffitt was announced during the winter, was the hostess at a delightful informal tea at the St. Francis this week. Miss Gebhardt is a very charming girl, and she is often a hostess in her delightful San Francisco home.

Among her guests at the St. Francis this week were Miss Harriet Stone, who looked exceedingly well, and Miss Fernanda Pratt. The latter is the very bright and attractive daughter of Mrs. Ernest Simpson. One hears she is a talented and accomplished young girl. She has received a very fine musical education and she plays exceedingly well.

One hears that Mr. Moffitt is making a business success on the other side of the bay, and the wedding of the young people bids fair to take place late in the summer. One hears that it will probably be a church affair, and will be followed by a reception at the bride's home on Vallejo street.

MR. AND MRS. E. T. EARL ATTEND LECTURES.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin T. Earl came up from Southern California for the Earl lectures and were guests at the Palace Hotel during the early part of the week. On Wednesday they were entertained at the home of the Guy Earls on Prospect Heights.

The Edwin Earls have a most attractive home in Southern California. Many distinguished people are their guests each year. Mrs. Guy Earl, with her daughters, Alice and Martha Earl, recently returned from a long trip abroad. They spent several months on the continent, and some time in Egypt, the trip being taken by way of additional educational advantages for the daughters of the household.

BRIDGE DATE FOR THE EBELL CLUB.

One of the largest "bridge dates" of the year is that planned by the Ebell Club for the first week in April, the afternoon being given in aid of the building fund of Ebell. Seventy-five prominent matrons of Ebell are to be hostesses of the afternoon, each hostess presiding at a table. In consequence there will be at least 300 bridge players assembled at the Ebell Club, and the afternoon promises to be a brilliant one in the social annals of the club, and it will represent the largest card gathering of the year.

PLANNING A TRIP TO ALASKA.

A party of well known Oakland people are planning a mid-summer trip to Alaska that bids fair to be full of interest. In the party will be Doctor and Mrs. Kane, Mr. and Mrs. James McElroy, the Misses Dunn, and Mrs. J. P. H. Dunn.

LENTEN SEWING BEES POPULAR.

Lenten sewing bees are everywhere the order of the day. There is sewing to be done for the "National Guild of Needlework" which each year provides so many useful garments for the poor. There are sewing afternoons in honor of brides-elect, the fortunate brides carrying home with much joy, the dainty trophies of their skill.

Among the interesting sewing bees are those given by the members of the Vincentian Society, who meet at different homes twice a month, and sew for the holiday bazaar which they propose to give early in the winter. Already they have a rare collection of articles of fine and artistic needlework, and their experiment already gives promise of great success.

The sewing bee of the week was held at the residence of Mrs. John L. Milton, who was an exceedingly hospitable hostess. Mrs. Milton was assisted in receiving her guests by her sister, Miss Mollie Milton.

Mrs. Nora Ryle will be an April hostess, entertaining the Vincentian members, at her home on Kempton avenue.

MR. AND MRS. SEARLES SAIL FOR EUROPE.

Mr. and Mrs. Denis Searles sailed this week from New York for Europe, going directly to Germany, where Mrs. Searles' sister, Miss Mary Ayer, is studying music.

Mrs. Searles and Miss Ayer will spend some time in Munich, while Mr. Searles takes a business trip to Russia. Later Mr. and Mrs. Searles will visit some of the leading cities of the continent, and they hope to be in London for the coronation festivities.

MRS. WM. CLIFT VISITS EGYPT.

Mrs. William Clift and Miss Jean Clift spent the latter part of the winter in Egypt, enjoying the gaiety of Cairo, and the fascination of the wonderful Nile.

It is a long way from the Nile to the land of the midnight sun, but they are going to take the journey, and the mid-summer days will find them in the far north. They have planned a most delightful expedition, among the fjords of Norway and Sweden, and they are planning to return to America in the late autumn.

MRS. CHENEY GIVES LECTURES.

Among the most important of the Lenten lectures are those which Mrs. Vance Cheney is giving this season at the Waldorf in New York city. CLOUDS HOVER OVER HOME OF OIL KING

Wm. Miller Graham Transfers $1,500,000 to Wife and Leaves.

LOS ANGELES, April 1.—Two sweethearts' lawsuits just filed in Santa Barbara, and the transfer by Wm. Miller Graham, a multi-millionaire oil magnate, of over $1,500,000 worth of property to his wife, following a series of unusual episodes, have stirred society there, here and even in London and Paris. The sensation comes directly in the wake of Mrs. Graham's recent memorable social campaign, perhaps the most brilliant ever conducted by an American woman abroad.

So far as can be learned, the only note of joy that rises above the loud wails emanating from classic Montecito, the Graham homes, comes from London, where Lord Henry Charles Keith, Petty-Fitzmaurice Lansdowne, twenty-sixth Baron of Kerry and Lismore, is figuratively tossing his hat in the air and cheering.

At Beck and Call

During Mrs. Graham's foreign conquest, Lansdowne was constantly at her beck and call. In Paris, a dashing widow, Mrs. Louise Timson, was a frequent visitor at Mrs. Graham's salon, William Brownell of Santa Barbara, New York, London and Paris, was also much there. Soon after Mrs. Graham's return to Santa Barbara, Brownell came back also, and a little later Mrs. Timson followed. There was more social activity in Santa Barbara and Montecito than ever before. Mrs. Timson did much of the entertaining, and Brownell was often at her side. Their engagement was rumored.

Stays at Home

Graham, who had been passing most of his time attending to deals in the east, suddenly discovered that he could stay at Montecito without suffering business losses. He began to get into the social swim, too. Not long ago Brownell and Graham met at the Country Club, and it is said they quarreled and a personal contest resulted. Then Brownell walked on the other side of the street when he passed Mrs. Timson's house, and she was so incensed that she had been loomed her. The doughty widow rushed into the breach immediately and sued Brownell for an automobile, piano and furniture which she alleged she bought to fit out a nest for themselves, and of which he has possession.

Like Pastor Well

RENO, Nev., April 1.—Albert J. Wells of Webb City, Mo., told Judge Moran in the District Court that he sought a decree of divorce from his wife, Sarah M., whom he married in that city October 1, 1903, because there was "too much preacher" in his home. "What do you mean by that?" queried the court. "Well, she was too fond of a certain preacher's company," answered Wells. The objectionable pastoral calls were made when the Wells family lived at San Jose, Cal., and the husband declared that when he remonstrated with his wife she told him she would keep him that she had given birth to their first child a month ago. "Our baby is a girl, Raymond," she wrote. "Tell me what name you want me to call her."

Pleads for Baby

SACRAMENTO, April 1.—After arriving in Reno, Raymond yesterday, charged jointly with his father, had embezzled $5000 from the National Bank of Bloomington, Kentucky. Detectives Biggs and Ryan found a letter in Byland's pocket from his wife, telling him that she had given birth to their first child a month ago. "Our baby is a girl, Raymond," she wrote. ST. JAMES CATHOLIC CHURCH IS SWEEPED BY FIRE

HEROIC

Rush Into Flaming Structure and Save Sacred Vessels
From Destruction

Panic Reigns and Men Weep
as They See Edifice Fall
Prey to Flames

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1.—St. James' Roman Catholic church, at Twenty-third and Guerrero streets, was practically destroyed by fire early this morning while thousands of its devoted parishioners looked on, helpless to check the flames. Displaying a devotion which has ever been characteristic, the three priests attached to the parish dashed through the flames and smoke, and with undaunted bravery and heroism, the blessed sacrament on the altar was saved from destruction and the beautiful paintings representing the stations of the cross were carried out.

Great excitement prevailed in the neighborhood. People occupying houses across the street and for a half block in each direction began to move their effects and fled from the path of the flames. Only the careful work of Chief Murphy and his men prevented the fire from spreading and the police department with difficulty handled the usual throng that ran forth from their houses when the cry was raised "St. James is burning." It was their parish church. It held a place in their hearts, and tears poured down the cheeks of many as they watched the destruction which they could not prevent.

AROUSING BY EXPLOSION.

Father J. Delahanty, the assistant pastor, was aroused by an explosion caused probably by heated air breaking through a glass roof. He was in the parish house adjoining the church. Quickly he aroused the pastor, Father P. R. Lynch, and the other assistant, Father W. J. Lande. The latter ran to the nearest box and turned in an alarm, while Father Delahanty opened the doors and the sacred vessels were taken out. The smoke and flames choked the passage and the timbers rattled and threatened to fall upon him, he made his way to the altar and procured the blessed sacrament, carried it into the parish house.

The three priests were busy saving the sacred vessels and paintings when the firemen began to arrive and aid in the work.

$45,000 LOSS.

The flames and smoke and falling pieces of scantling and bits of glass rendered the interior of the beautiful edifice an inferno. The alarm after alarm was turned in and a large amount of fire apparatus was soon on hand and a score of streams was playing upon the burning structure. The fire in the upper portions of the building.

Two of the magnificent stained glass windows on either side of the church were smashed and the water, which was poured upon them, remained intact, and some of the furniture of the church also escaped without damage. Only a shell of the building, however, remains and the loss is placed by Father Lande at $45,000.

During the progress of the blaze Father Lynch became so overcome at the sight of the destruction of the church where he had served as pastor for twenty-one years, that he had to be taken to his room and is confined to his bed.

The flames broke out about 4 a. m. in the boys' society, to the left of the altar, presumably through a spark kindled by crossed wires. The side altars of the building were partially destroyed, but the main altar, it is thought, escaped harm, having been covered by the rubber throb of the underwriters.

Once it was thought that the blaze was out, and Chief Murphy dispersed his company. But the flames were still burning, however, and the flames arose again and this time the department was kept on the scene, some of the companies remaining until 10 o'clock.

WORK OF CHRISTIAN BROTHERS.

The Christian Brothers of St. James School were on hand simultaneously with the firemen, and they aided in saving some of the altar cloths, vases, crosses and vessels used in the services. That some one was not killed and that all of the firemen managed to do their work without injury is considered miraculous when it is known that a large number of timbers fell from the roof of the structure while it was ablaze, and afterward while the hot embers were cooling.

Father Lynch is in his room and cannot be seen, said Father Lande, when questioned as to the whereabouts of the pastor. "He is overcome by the destruction of the church. It is a terrible thing, and we all feel very badly about it. The loss will be about $45,000, and I think it is amply covered by insurance. Tomorrow we will hold services in the hall."

The building was erected twenty-one years ago by Hugh Foot, contractor, and Architect Frank Shea.

All day long crowds of the curious and persons who have been worshipping for years, many of them having been baptized and confirmed in the church, viewed the ruins. The adjoining parish house would undoubtedly have caught fire had it not been of brick construction.

MURPHY CRITICIZED.

Considerable criticism attached to Chief Murphy by reason of the sending home of the fire apparatus when the blaze properly been put out. So much agitation has been made by residents that the fire commissioners were called, and, according to rumor around the hall of the fire department, Chief Murphy's job may be done for him. An investigation is being held and some say that had the department in its full strength worked at

INCENDIARY FIRE.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 1.—While the St. James Church fire was raging at 5 o'clock this morning, a blaze which may have been the work of an incendiary, broke out in the two-story unoccupied dwelling at 406 Diamond street, owned by M. Concannon. It spread to the residence of J. Schumacker, 4105 Twenty-first street, adjoining, and caused damage to the amount of $3000. The fire apparatus, which was near at hand, was called, and the fire was quickly extinguished. The company had to make the long trip from Eighteenth and Ashbury streets.

LEADERSHIP IN
CAMORRA
DENIED

Ring Leader, Under Fire, Says
That His Organization
Is Dead.

VITERBO, Italy, April 1.—Under cross examination today, Enrico Alfano appeared to less advantage than he did under direct interrogation yesterday when his vehement denials that he was "either the head or the tail of the Camorra" or had guilty knowledge of the deaths of Gennaro Cuocolo and his wife, fairly stunned the audience. He denied skillfully, but was not so convincing.

"If you were innocent," asked President Bianchi, "why did you flee to the United States? You did not take your flight when immediately after the crime, you were accused. In fact, you delayed and were arrested. But following your release you fled when Abbiamaglio's revelations began, and in so doing you showed that you felt that the informer spoke the truth."

TRIES TO EXPLAIN FLIGHT.

"I fled," answered Alfano, "because for the second time I was experiencing an attack of intestinal trouble, and I feared that it would be aggravated by confinement if I was held in prison for some years preceding my trial. Of my ultimate vindication I had no doubt."

"And what of the Camorra today?" pursued the president. "It no longer exists."

"That assertion," corrected the president, "is explainable when it is recalled that a rule of the society obliges Camorristas to deny to the authorities their affiliation with the Camorra, this repudiation of their position not implying cowardice in the eyes of the Camorra."

Patrick's Declare They Are Not Responsible for Damaging Carpet in Apartment.

W. C. Nolan Was Cleared of Charges Brought at Sonoma City.

The many friends of W. C. Nolan regret exceedingly that his name should have been drawn into the Patrick-Byron affair. Nolan, who is now a special student at the State University, was formerly a teacher in Sonoma. While there in that capacity he became the target for damaging statements that grew out of troubles that involved Dr. Byron.

It should be distinctly understood that Mr. Nolan was absolutely cleared of all suspicion of any wrong doing. In fact, it was openly stated, after a searching investigation, that he had been made the victim of a diabolical plot to defame his character.

It is simply a matter of justice to Mr. Nolan to emphasize the fact of his complete exoneration.

DODGE DAMAGES.

Responsibility for the damage done in the room taken by Miss Ethel Patrick from the Central Emergency Hospital, when her father stabbed Dr. A. E. Byron, and incidentally ruined some of the furniture, has become a subject of grave concern to the Patrick family. While Dr. Byron fights for his life in the Providence Hospital, and J. B. Patrick, the father, endures confinement in the city prison for the cutting fray, mother and daughter are consulting legal counsel as to whether they are responsible for spoiling the carpet on the floor of the room.

Miss Ethel Patrick rented the room six days before the trouble between her father and Dr. Byron, giving the name as Mrs. Lawrence. She had a deposit of $150. When Dr. Byron was stabbed he waited for some time in the room before the ambulance arrived, and the deep wound in his breast bled profusely before it could be staunch.

ALLEGES PROMISE.

Mrs. W. Henry, proprietress of the hotel, claims that the Patricks promised to make good for the damages and to pay for the cost of the room. The girl and her mother explained that they were willing to pay the balance of the room rent, but did not believe they could be held legally responsible for the damage to the carpet. This morning they called upon Captain of Detectives Peterson to gain his opinion as to their rights and responsibilities in the matter. The captain of detectives was out at the time of the visit.

Mrs. Henry has declined to turn over a suitcase containing some small belongings to Miss Patrick until a settlement is made in the matter of the damages. The suitcase contained garments brought by the girl when she rented the room under the name of Mrs. Lawrence.

Patrick will remain in the city prison until the determination of Dr. Byron's condition, unless he decides to apply for release on habeas corpus proceedings. It is probable that he will not make an application for habeas corpus, but will remain in his present position of detention.

Dr. Byron was reported slightly improved in condition today, and according to the physicians has a fighting chance of life.

Reports from the Providence hospital early this afternoon contain the information that Dr. A. E. Byron's condition is somewhat better today, although it is still too early to say that he is out of danger. No complications have yet set in in his case, and the prospects for continued improvement are favorable.

SACRAMENTO, April 1.—Senate bill No. 1395, introduced by Senator Walker and known as the "shrimp bill," which prohibits the use of Chinese bag nets and also prohibits the possession of dried shrimp at any time of the year, was signed today by Governor Johnson. This is the bill against which a most powerful lobby was organized. It is the bill over which a near scandal cropped out at the very last day of the session, when the conference committee report was last made. The bill was passed by the Assembly and the Senate and the whole bill would have been killed had not the governor signed it. The governor's signature was a new report made from the certified records of the Assembly.

KING ALFONSO LOSES HIS CABINET

Premier Canalejas and All
Other Ministers of Spain Resign.

General Weyler Given Responsibility for Forming New Ministry.

MADRID, April 1.—The cabinet of Premier Canalejas resigned today. It is rumored tonight that General Weyler, captain general of Catalonia, has been charged with the responsibility of forming a new cabinet.

King Alfonso, who has been staying at Seville with Queen Victoria and their children, started hastily today for Madrid, following the receipt of official dispatches concerning the resignation of the cabinet.

The Canalejas cabinet was formed on February 9, 1910, and reorganized on January 1 last. Canalejas, in forcing religious reforms, encountered the bitter opposition of the Catholics and his course resulted in a radical suspension of diplomatic relations between the government and the Vatican.

The premier has been credited with the support of King Alfonso and his bill of associations, amended to regulate the religious and other societies, which he refused to submit first to the Holy See, was approved unanimously by the cabinet last Tuesday and was to be introduced in the Cortes on April 6.

The cabinet met today and discussed the violent controversy which have arisen within and outside the Chamber of Deputies during the debate on the trial of President Ferrer, the founder of the Modern School at Barcelona, who was executed in 1909 after conviction on the charge of inciting revolution.

The ministers also considered what attitude the government should take concerning new developments, particularly the agitation in the army.

Such was the diversity of opinion on several points that the retirement of the cabinet was determined upon.

CHANGES METHOD
OF TAKING CENSUS

School Marshal Relegated and Figures Will Be Based on Attendance.

SACRAMENTO, April 1.—In signing Assembly bill No. 287 and No. 368 today, Governor Johnson sanctioned a change in the method of taking census by cutting out the old school census marshal method and basing the number of school children on the average daily attendance in the schools. This method will be followed in determining the apportionment of state school money and also in fixing the number of teachers each school is entitled to.

Under provisions of the bill, each school is entitled to one teacher for every thirty-five children attending. Then another provision allows two additional teachers for every two pupils.

The large class where under the old system of census marshal reports they secured much money and many of the pupils were not so badly, for the two additional teachers for each 700 pupils brings them back to a better basis.

ELECT DELEGATES.

BERKELEY, April 1.—Five men were elected by Berkeley Lodge, No. 270, 1 night to represent the college city lodge in the grand lodge which will convene in San Francisco May 8. The representatives chosen are: J. E. Underwood, William Neuman, J. E. Streightoff, M. L. Buck and Fred Pratt.

CONCERT TONIGHT.

BERKELEY, April 1.—A number of street merchants will give a band concert for shoppers tonight.

IT WAS "BLACK FRIDAY"

Oakland Experiences Unprecedented Event Last Evening About Dusk.

Old residents of Oakland in their serious moods of retrospection failed to recall at any time in the late history of the city a similar event.

Many eventful things are transpiring in rapid succession in the onward strides of Greater Oakland, but this "Black Friday" will remain one of the matters of future discussion.

The deluge of publicity demanded by Oakland merchants caused a stir at the OAKLAND TRIBUNE and the great volume of handsomely prepared advertisements concerning merchandise values darkens THE TRIBUNE pages to such an extent that it might be called a "Dark Friday."

Column upon column of bold faced, convincingly edited advertisements darkened the pages of THE TRIBUNE, so that advertiser and reader were kept busy in segregating the kernels of news values and merchandise bargains. Here is the way the deluge of advertisements "darkened" the twenty-four well-edited, well-filled news pages of the largest evening newspaper west of Chicago, and it shows yesterday to be the largest Friday in the history of THE OAKLAND TRIBUNE:

TRIBUNE—Friday, March 31, 1911	2409 inches
TRIBUNE—Friday, March 25, 1910	2045 inches
TRIBUNE—Friday, February 27, 1909	1940 inches
TRIBUNE—Friday, December 23, 1908	1935 inches
TRIBUNE—Friday, April 19, 1908	1910 inches

Again the value of publicity in a genuinely responsible, readable newspaper is proven, and it shows that the merchant who would prosper must advertise in THE TRIBUNE.

It was decided by the council that it had no option in the matter and that the ordinance must be submitted with another ordinance calling for a reduction in gas and electric rates.

ALAMEDA OUT OF FOOTBALL LEAGUE

Students Withdraw From the Organization Which Aids Championship to Lick.

ALAMEDA, April 1.—As a result of the action of the Academic Athletic League in declaring Lick high school, San Francisco, the winner of the 1910 football championship of the A. A. L., and awarding the school trophy cup, now in the possession of the Alameda high school, the Alameda students have withdrawn from the A. A. L. yesterday by a unanimous vote. Edwin Anthony, president of the associated student body, and a member of the football team, made the motion for withdrawal. Walker Paul, Alameda's football captain, seconded the motion. Ed Beach, Charles Murphy and others spoke in favor of withdrawing. Edward Seagrave entered the protest against the action of the league, but later voted in favor of breaking away from the league.

The action of the Alameda students, who have held the school championship for two seasons, follows a bitterly waged controversy as to whether Hitchcock Military Academy, San Rafael, Lick high school or the local high players were the champions of the league. When Alameda entered the league, the officials of the A. A. L. voted that there should be no champion declared and that Alameda should retain the trophy cup another season. The local players protested, and the two views of the league at which Alameda was not represented last week.

Postmaster Leydecker stated today that he expected to receive a rough sketch of the plans of the new postoffice in about a month. He said the building would probably be commenced within the next four or five months.

The sum of $120,000 was appropriated by the government for a postoffice building at Alameda. The lot is 144,000, there will remain $108,000 with which to construct a building.

JUDGE'S GIRLS TAKE LONG TRAMP

J. C. Jenkins and Women Walk Ten Miles Into Berkeley; Auto Sticks in Mud.

BERKELEY, April 1.—Misses Eunice, Susan and Katherine Jenkins, young daughters of Judge James C. Jenkins of the Philippines Judiciary, trudged bravely along with their father on an eight-mile tramp to Berkeley in the darkness Thursday evening, after an automobile in which they were riding became mired in the Tunnel road on Contra Costa county. Encountering fog on one of the highest peaks, they were in danger of losing their way.

William E. Woolsey, owner of the Hotel Shattuck where the Jenkins family is staying, and Manager Noah Gray, of the same hotel, were members of the party, which was enjoying the pleasant ride when the machine stuck in a mud-hole. Woolsey spent the night with the family, and today walked to the hotel after the Jenkins family, arriving about midnight.

The girls were worn out by the long tramp, eight-year-old Katherine Jenkins having almost fainted from exhaustion. The accident was unavoidable, but caused much regret on the part of Woolsey.

May Appoint Engineer on the Hetch-Hetchy Water Proposition.

ALAMEDA, April 1.—The city council last night in committee session decided to call a special meeting of the committee of the whole to discuss the appointment of an engineer to investigate the Hetch Hetchy water proposition with the engineers employed by San Francisco, Berkeley and Oakland.

In a communication received from City Clerk Frank Thompson of Oakland last night, it was stated that the city of Oakland had appointed J. D. Galloway of Berkeley and J. H. ---Peaches and Crushed Walnuts, and as Good As It Sounds

When peaches were at their best last summer we obtained a special shipment of selected Crawford, without bruise or blemish, and peeled them all by hand and preserved them in glass jars.

This work was done by young women and we doubt if ever a peach was canned more carefully.

We used the best of everything and preserved them exactly as the most conscientious housekeeper would preserve them for her personal use.

Tomorrow we are going to take these delicious peaches with all their luscious juice and make a peach ice fit for the gods.

Don't miss it.

We will serve with it a layer of our popular walnut ice cream and a layer of vanilla ice cream and if you do not all acknowledge this to be "One of Lehnhardt's Finest" we will be greatly surprised.

ANDERSON GIVES HIS PLATFORM
TO THE PUBLIC

HARRY S. ANDERSON, candidate for Commissioner No.
1, announces his platform as follows:

Harry S. Anderson, candidate for Commissioner No. 1, has issued the following as his platform:
"I am in favor of a thorough,
business-like administration of every department of the city government.
"I believe the tax rate of the city to be unnecessarily high and pledge my best efforts to accomplish a considerable reduction by the application of sound business principles, a close personal supervision of department expenditures and the elimination of unnecessary expenditures of any kind.
"I favor the immediate development and control of Oakland's waterfront, so that our position as a shipping center may be assured.
"I shall insist upon rigid discipline of all municipal employees and the exercise by them of the utmost efficiency and courtesy to all having business with the city.
"I strongly advocate the improvement of our streets.
"I believe that in the improvement and development of the city all sections should be given equal consideration and that no one section should be specially favored at the cost of another.
"I believe in adequate protection being accorded, both in the lives and property of our citizens, and therefore favor a sufficient number of police officers and firemen to meet the needs
of all parts of the city."

IN POSTAL RANKS

Hitchcock Shakes Up Railway
Mail Officers and Reor-ganizes Service.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Drastic action has been taken by Postmaster-General Hitchcock in effecting a reorganization of the railway mail service. A dozen changes of the most important officers were made.
Theodore Ingalls of Kentucky, superintendent of the division of rural mails, was appointed general superintendent of the railway mail service at $4000 a year, in succession to Alexander
Grant, who was transferred to St. Paul, Minn., as a division superintendent, a reduction to $3000.
Norman Perkins, division superintendent of St. Paul, becomes superintendent of the Washington division, succeeding Charles W. Vickery, who is appointed chief clerk of the Cincinnati division, vice A. J. Bail, reduced to railway postal clerk.
Clyde M. Reed, district superintendent of Cleveland, is appointed superintendent of the Cincinnati division to succeed Charles Hagar, who was reduced and appointed chief clerk of the Atlantic division in place of John F. Blodgett, removed.
John C. Koors, postoffice inspector in the Washington division, was appointed railway mail superintendent, in charge of the Cleveland division.
George G. Thomson, inspector in charge of Austin, Tex., was appointed superintendent of the division of rural mails in succession to Ingalls.
Charles B. Anderson, inspector in charge at St. Louis, will succeed Thomson as inspector in charge at Austin.

ADE LIKES JURY DUTY;
IT'S HONEST, HE SAYS

KENTLAND, Ind., April 1.—George Ade, the humorist and playwright, has a new job and he likes it fine and dandy.
The Sheriff of this county overheard Ade complaining that he had never sat on a jury. The tip was given to the bailiff and Ade was forthwith summoned on the regular panel. The esteemed George was made foreman and the first case was a chicken stealing escapade.
Ade said:
"This job is a snap. All I have to do is to sit and listen. It is the first easy honest money I ever made."
Ade has promised the proceeds of his earnings to a boys' baseball team for new suits.

JOB PRINTERS REFUSE
EMPLOYEES A RAISE

PORTLAND, Ore., April 1.—Employing job printers have notified the local typographical union that they will not accede to a demand for an increase of 75 cents per day in the existing scale for linotype operators. The printers assign as their reason that they are compelled to meet competition from other cities where the scale is from 20 to 33 1-3 per cent below the existing Portland scale and further increase would demoralize their business. The present minimum is $4.75 for day work and $5.25 for night
work.

NEW ROADS FOR VALLEY PLANNED

$5,000,000 Company to Interlace Counties of the San Joaquin With Railways.

MODESTO, April 1.—The formation of the Inter-Counties Railway company with a capitalization of $5,000,- 000 to run a network of railroads through the San Joaquin valley, was brought up at a mass meeting of citizens here last night called for the purpose of organizing a Business
Men's League in Modesto.

The new company proposes to run its lines in connection with a similar system in the Sacramento valley, with connections at San Francisco and the other bay cities.

The Inter-Counties Railway company proposes to build its initial line from Modesto to Crocks Landing and Newman on the west side of the San Joaquin river in Stanislaus county and from Modesto to Turlock, Merced,
Fresno and the southern part of the San Joaquin valley.

The personnel of the directorate identifies this proposition, beyond a doubt, with the recently organized corporation whose holdings include the Oakland and Antioch Electric line, now in course of construction, and whose field of extension includes a line across the islands of the San Joaquin river delta to Stockton and via the Central California Traction and Northern Electric lines to the northern part of the Sacramento valley.

One of the directors is A. W. Maltby of Concord, Contra Costa county, one of the backers of the Antioch and Oakland line. Maltby is also heavily interested in a power plant at Niagara Falls.

Joseph F. Peters is the owner of the Buhach ranch in Merced county and the director of several banks in Stockton.

Other directors are William H.
Langdon, former district attorney of San Francisco; A. T. Nelson, president of the Union Savings bank of Stockton; E. S. Wangenheim, president of the Bank of Newman; M. D. Wood, manager of the Merced Security Savings bank; L. G. Worden, president of the First National bank of Merced and Charles Harris, for many years postmaster at Merced.
